Bombs Found In Bank Safes In Three Cities

Devices Disarmed In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police today found and disarmed bombs at Crocker National Bank and Wells Fargo Bank in the San Francisco Financial District —two of the nine banks across the nation where an anonymous letter warned delayed-time bombs had been planted seven months ago.

No bomb was immediately found at Bank of America, the third San Francisco bank on the list, but te FBI theorized that an explosive which went off in a Bank of America branch Sept. 7 may have exploded prematurely.

New York and Chicago were the other two cities where the letter, apparently from a terrorist underground organization, warned bombs had been planted. Three were found in New York and two in Chicago.

The FBI said the Sept. 7 Bank of America bomb went off in a safety deposit box registered to "Charles Mohr or Moore"—the same name used for the boxes where bombs were found in some cases in New York and Chicago.

Police bomb squad experts, using dogs specially trained to sniff out explosives, found the bomb in the Crocker Bank at 1 Montgomery St. at about 8:30 a. m. and one in Wells Fargo Bank at Market and Montgomery a few minutes later.

The bomb at Wells Fargo was found in a safety deposit box but Wells Fargo officials said it had not been immediately determined whether it was the one named in the letter — Box No. 3114.

"It had a timer and it was an explosive device," said Mary Harper, a bank spokesman. " I asked the police if it would have gone off and he said he felt that it would have."

Since there was no key immediately available at the Wells Fargo bank, police drilled it open and found the black powder device. It was disarmed and spread out on the floor in the box vault area of the bank.

The letter, received by news media in San Francisco and Chicago, said "demonstration bombs" made of slow-burning powder had been planted in July in banks in those two cities and New York.

It touched off a frantic search in all three cities. Bombs were found in all three New York institutions named in the letter and in two in Chicago.

The unsigned letter said the bombs were planted as a demonstration of future attempts to force the release of "political prisoners" by threatening to blow up buildings or freeways.

Lt. Jim Ryan of the San Francisco Police Department said keys to some boxes were

Quentin Closing: A Marin Saving

By JEFF GREER

Closing San Quentin Prison could save Marin County taxpayers between $200,000 and $300,000 a year in direct expenses, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell estimated yesterday.

Gov. Ronald Rhagan called earlier in the day for the 120-year-old maximum security prison to be phased out of operation by the end of his term in 1974. He revealed the plan in his annual state-of-the-state message to the Legislature.

Abandonment of San Quentin, meanwhile, could open up a valuable piece of real estate. Adjoining undeveloped land has sold at prices varying from $10,000 to $30,000 per acre, according to San Rafael real estate man Robert A. Roumiguiere. One 12-acre parcel sold recently for $400,000, he said.

The San Quentin property, subject to county planning regulations, is in a single-family residential zone. Joseph R. O'Brien, San Quentin information officer, said the state owns approximately 400 acres, about half of it tidelands.

Mitchell said his figures on potential taxpaer savings were based on nonreimbursable costs now paid by the county in handling legal matters connected with San Quentin inmates. Extra personnel, space and overhead are required in the courts, district attorney's office, sheriff's department and clerk's office to handle the cases.

The state now only repays Marin for what the Department of Corrections considers direct costs, such as the district attorney's time in court on a San Quentin case. An exception is the Angela Y. Davis and Ruchell Magee court hearings stemming from the Aug. 7, 1970 shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley, three convicts and a youthful accomplice were killed. Special legislation was approved last year to gain reimbursement for the Davis-Magee proceedings.

Petaluma Hospital Plan Buds

By BONNIE BARD

The Petaluma Hospital District board, in two split votes, decided last night to plan for a new hospital, possibly in East Petaluma, and to begin machinery to obtain the funds to build the facility.

In a 3-2 vote, the board decided to go ahead with construction of a 100-bed hospital on a new site and to consider a new use for Hillcrest Hospital.

Directors E. William Schneider and Clyde Nelson dissented, saying it would be less expensive to expand at Hillcrest. Drs. Hamza Munib, Francis Crinella and Frederick Groverman supported the move to a more centrally located site.

The Hillcrest site, in Petaluma's western sector, has been criticized in some quarters as out-of-the-way.

By an idential 3-2 vote, the board agreed to finance the new hospital's cost, estimated at $7 million, by issuing joint authority revenue bonds. Under that plan, the district would join with another governmental entity, such as the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, to form a joint authority, sell the needed bonds and lease the new building back to the hospital district.

Nelson argued that Hillcrest was far from obsolete, had land on which to expand and that the work could be done at a lower

Jobless Rate Up, At 10-Year High

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Unemployment edged up to 6.1 per cent of America's labor force in December, closing out 1971 with the highest average rate in a decade, 5.9 per cent, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said the number of jobless persons increased 66,000 last month to a total of 5.21 million after seasonal adjustments. The 6.1 per cent unemployment rate, compared to a 10-year high of 6.2 per cent in December, 1970, represented a rise of 0.1 per cent from November.

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. o'Brien seized on the new report as evidence that "Richard Nixon's very good year in 1972" — referring to Nixon's economic forecast this year — "has gotten off to a very bad start."

At a hearing late this morning by the House-Senate Economic Committee, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., told a Labor Department official, Geoffrey H. Moore, "We seem to be going along at almost depression levels of unemployment . . . This looks to me like a pretty discouraging if not bleak picture."

Moore did not disagree.

While both the percentage of unemployment and the number of persons without jobs increased, the year-end report said the number of persons with jobs also increased in December to a record high of 80,130,000 from 80,020,000 in November. November marked the first time U.S. employment had ever reached 80 million.

The 6.1 per cent jobless rate for December was described by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics as "essentially unchanged" and "not appreciably different" from November when it was 0.1 per cent less. Besides 6.2 per cent in December, 1971, it also was higher, also at 6.2 per cent, last May.

The bureau said the 5.9 per cent average rate for all of 1971 —compared to 4.9 per cent in 1970, was the highest since joblessness averaged 6.7 per cent in 1961. The 1969 rate, during President Nixon's first year in office, was 3 5 per cent.

UNUSUAL SAN RAFAEL ENCOUNTER

Congressman Versus Students: Mailliard's Classroom Return

By FRANK FARRARA

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, veteran of many House committee battles, lent his political finesse to an unusual gathering of government students yesterday at San Rafael High School.

He and the students — who soon will be voting for the first time — sat as a "house foreign affairs committee," tackling a foreign aid bill drawn up by the youths.

The students, it turned out, were as interested in finding out Mailliard's opinion of crucial matters as they were about parliamentary procedure of a congressional committee.

But despite some sharp questioning, together with an expression of contrasting views, the congressman won a round of applause at the conclusion of the gathering.

Did Mailliard, who is seeking reelection this year, think he won any votes?

"I don't know if it was a plus or minus politically," he said. But, he added, "It gave them a chance to see a congressman and find out that he looks like dad."

Mailliard explained that yesterday's visit was nothing new, since he has been gathering with student groups to discuss politics for years.

Mailliard, tanned and natty in a gray suit, was at the microphone in a conference room at the school, carefully guiding the group through procedural matters, explaining how it is done in Washington where he is ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Students were listening intently, a school television camera was taping the session and the committee was plodding through the bill, section by section, when impatience broke through.

"We've been here almost an hour, and I have yet to hear your opinion," committee member Mark Buffi said to Mailliard. "We haven't learned anything we couldn't read in a book."

Mailliard said he understood the session was designed primarily to show how democracy functions. "I don't come here to sell anything," he said.

Normally, the committee chairman engages in little debate and is a veteran whose views are known, Mailliard said. "As chairman, everyone knows my views," he said.

Two students in the audience retorted almost at the same time "we don't know yours."

Before the congressman and the students — members of government classes of teachers Morse Byer and Virginia Franklin — was a "bill" which, among other things, called for ending military and economic aid to South Vietnam by July 31, 1972. During the "hearing," students came and went as class hours changed, and the whole thing wound up with a question-and-answer period.

Other provisions of the "legislation" called for expansion of the Peace Corps and the Agency for International Development, making the Central Intelligence Agency accountable for all money spent overseas, providing military aid to Israel and other Middle East nations, recognizing the new nation of Bangladesh, making all foreign aid a loan and limiting the U.S. contribution to the United Nations to 10 per cent of the UN budget.

Byer said students were most interested in the Vietnam war and the press had indicated that Mailliard has adopted "hawkish" views.

"That's a pretty simplistic interpretation on the part of the press," Mailliard replied. "Personal feelings are not always revealed in a vote."

He said he had recommended against a large land force in Southeast Asia to former President Lyndon B. Johnson, but "my recommendation wasn't accepted."

Once troops were sent, he voted for funds to support them, he said. "We committeed ourselves and our credibility

Couple Hijacks PSA Jet; Bound To Cuba

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A black couple that manhandled a stewardess and battered a passenger with a gun butt hijacked a plane over California today, diverted it to Tampa, then headed for Cuba when told the plane did not have the range to reach Africa.

The couple, who took over the Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 on a flight between San Francisco and Los Angeles, permitted the 132 passengers aboard the flight to disembark at Los Angeles before beginning their cross-country flight.

They kept as hostages the three man flight crew and seven stewardesses, one of whom was yanked around by the hair of her head by the profane male hijacker. One of the passengers reported the man also hit him in the stomach with the butt of a shot gun and called him a "hippie."

The black couple boarded the flight carrying a portable baby bed, but authorities believe the bed contained the shotfun, shotgun,er than an infant.

The plane was on the ground at Tampa two hours and 33 minutes, and shortly before it departed, the pilot radioed "the passenger is getting mighty jumpy and nervous."

There initially was no official announcement where the plane was headed when it lifted off from Tampa at 11:56 a.m. EST,

Angela Davis Is Hospitalized

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Angela Davis was hospitalized today for tests by "both doctors and dentists", her attorney said, and also is suffering from a mysterious "coldness in her lower extremities."

Howard Moore, chief defense counsel for the 27-year-old black militant who is to go on trial Jan 31 for murder and kidnapping, refused to define the illness for which the tests were being carried out.

"Hopefully, the doctors and dentists can clear this up," he said. "I am more worried over her constant complaints of coldness in her lower extremities. This has been going on for some time and has me extremely worried."

Blackout Hits 2,000 Homes

More than 2,000 homes in East San Rafael were without electrical power for periods ranging from a half hour to more than two hours last night after a piece of equipment on a utility pole failed.

Robert H. Williams, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., said the outage began at 5:30 p.m. when the equipment problem occurred at a pole on Third Street, east of Grand Avenue.

By 6:54 p.m., Williams said service had been restored to all but 104 in the immediate area of the equipment failure. All the lights were back on by 7:44 p.m., he reported.

San Rafael police said they had received no reports of traffic snarls caused by the outage.

VALLADOLID, Spain (UPI) — Two commuter trains collided headon today at Medila del Campo, killing three persons and injuring "about 100," police reported. Medina del Campo is 100 miles northwest of Madrid.

Nixon In '72 Race — 'To Complete Work'

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)— President Nixon formally announced his candidacy for reelection today to "complete the work" of bringing peace and prosperity to America and the world."

The President, in a letter to former Gov. Lane Dwinell, said he would "work toward the national renewal that will make the anniversary year of 1976 as proud a milestone for America as was 1776."

Dwinell, who entered Nixon's name in the March 7 New Hampshire primary, released the letter at a news conference.

The President said he would permit his name to be entered in the other primaries but would refrain from "public partisan activities ... at least until the Republican convention."

"It was in New Hampshire that I began my campaign for the presidency four years ago, and I remember well the opportunity that campaign provided to visit so much of the state and to meet so many of its people," Nixon wrote.

"I have tried to be true to the trust that they expressed, and to carry forward the effort we began in New Hampshire in 1968: to bring peace and progress both both abroad and at home and to give America the leadership it needs for a new era of national greatness," Nixon wrote.

"I want to complete the work that we have done and therefore I shall be a candidate for renomination and reelection," the President said.

Nixon will be opposed in New Hampshire by two Republicans from opposite sides of his party —liberal Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., and conservative Rep. John R. Ashbrook, R-Ohio. Ashbrook officially entered in the New Hampshire race Thursday, saying he hoped Nixon would turn more conservative and make Ashbrook's candidacy unnecessary. He predicted he would have a bigger volunteer effort in the state than McCloskey.

New Justices Are Sworn In

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Virginia lawyer Lewis F. Powell Jr. and Assistant Attorney General William H. Rehnquist were sworn in today —giving the Supreme Court both its 99th and 100th justices in history and the conservative bent President Nixon had sought.

Powell, 64, from Richmond, is the seventh man to be appointed from his state while Rehnquist, 47, is the first from Arizona. Both are regarded as strict constructionists on constitutional law.

In accordance with custom, the two men took their oath to support the Constitution —the same oath given all federal employes —in the privacy of the justices' conference room with only their seven colleagues present. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath.

Two members of the court have not been sworn in on the same day since Jan. 3, 1911 when Justices Willis Van Devanter and Joseph R. Lamar were seated. Powell is taking the chair of Van Devanter, who preceded the late Hugo L. Black.

Powell, as the senior appointee, was sworn in first, helped on with his robe by robing attendant Hansford Harrison and seated in tme chair at the far left of the high mahogany bench beside Justice Thurgood Marshall. Rehnquist was seated at the far right beside Justice Harry A. Blackmun.

At the end of the brief ceremony the newly robed jurists — neither of whom has been a judge before — proceeded with the rest of the court to the private conference room to vote on more than 200 petitions for review.

Rehnquist retained Allen Snyder of Takoma Park, Md., who was clerk to the late John N. Harlan, and is bringing in Frederick Lambert of Millbrun, N.J., a special assistant at the Justice Department, and Michael Meehan, Tucson, Ariz. Rehnquist succeeds Harlan, who died last week.

Powell has moved into Black's former chambers while Rehnquist will occupy the quarters used for some years by Justice Byron R. White, who has moved into Harlan's chambers. Where office space is concerned, seniority rules.

Monday the court will begin hearing arguments at full strength for the first time since the 1970-71 term closed in June. The first two cases test whether a criminal conviction is constitutionally permissible by less than a unanimous vote of 12 jurors.

The week of January 17 starts with a series of cases to determine whether the death sentence is "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the Constitution.

B52s Assist Saigon Troops In Cambodia

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese forces trying to forestall a Communist offensive struck into eastern Cambodia at dawn today after B52s and waves of fighter-bombers hit Communist positions near the Central Highlands border area.

In Laos, a twin Communist offensive scored new gains and military sources said the situation was deteriorating badly. The North Vietnamese maintained pressure against Long Cheng in the northwest and were moving toward Pakse in the south in an effort to slice off Laos' southern tip.

B52s have carried out unusually heavy raids in the Central Highlands and in the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) where military sources have predicted major Communist offensives to coincide with President Nixon's visit to China.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel, reporting from the Laotian capital of Vientiane, said the Communist offensives there also were believed aimed at placing Hanoi in a strong position before Nixon goes to Peking next month.

In Cambodia there was a lull on most battle fronts—except for the South Vietnamese strike by helicopter-borne troops from the Central Highlands. The high command in Phnom Penh reported only a minor clash early today in Svay Rieng Province adjoining South Vietnam. Ten Cambodians were wounded.

Vietnamese reports said the Communists moving westward from the captured Bolovens Plateau were within 20 miles of Pakse, the biggest town of Southern Laos, which is about 90 miles north of the Cambodian border.

American fighter-bombers were hitting the advancing Communist forces at the town of Ban Nhik, five miles west of the captured town of Paksong and 20 miles east of Pakse, but were unable to halt the offensive. Loss of the Bolovens Plateau itself greatly widened the Ho Chi Minh Trail network. Capture of Pakse would give the Communists almost total control over lower Laos adjoining Cambodia and South Vietnam.

American fighter-bombers also were hitting Communist long-range artillery positions around Long Cheng, the once super secret CIA-run guerrilla base 80 miles northeast of Vientiane. But the situation there remained critical.

In action in the Central Highlands, an American helicopter accidentally opened fire on South Vietnamese troops, killing one soldier and wounding five others. Shortly afterwards, another U.S. helicopter was shot down in the same area, wounding its three crewmen.

After two waves of B52s bombed Communist troop concentrations 43 miles southwest of the South Vietnamese town of Pleiku, a Communist radio broadcast was monitored telling troops of North Vietnam's 95B Regiment to head west further into Cambodia.

More than 2,000 men of the South Vietnamese 47th Regiment and the 2nd Ranger Group were airlifted over the border into Cambodia by helicopter shortly after the American B52s and Vietnamese A37 jets and Al propeller-driven Skyraiders pounded the area, UPI Correspondent Alan Dawson reported.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

An Arms Delay?

VIENNA (UPI) — The Soviet Union believes that President Nixon is deliberately delaying a Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) agreement until after his trip to Peking next month, Communist diplomats said today.

The latest session of the talks was being held today in the American Embassy.

The diplomats said the Soviets are convinced that Nixon would consider it embarrassing to go to China Feb. 21-28 with the first substantive treaty to emerge from the SALT talks. China has accused the two superpowers of "collusion" in the past and is expected to do so again when a SALT treaty is signed.

Body Removal

PUCALLPA, Peru (UPI) — Workmen today built a heliport in the Amazon jungle to remove the bodies of the 91 persons killed in the crash of a Peruvian airliner Dec. 24.

The lone survivor, Juliane Koepcke, 17, who wandered through the jungle nine days until she was rescued, was in satisfactory condition at a local hospital and may be discharged within a week, her father said.

Wreckage of the Peruvian Lansa Airlines Electra was scattered over a mile and a half area about 30 minutes by air from Pucallpa. The plane crashed on a flight from Lima to this river port, 450 miles northeast of the Peruvian capital.

Ambusher Shot

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops shot an ambushing sniper and seized eight men in a raid on what they said was a Belfast Irish Republican Army (IRA) recruiting center, security forces sources said today.

The sources said the soldiers shot the sniper who ambushed them when they moved into the search and seizure operation in the Roman Catholic Andersonstown district of the Northern Ireland capital.

As troops moved in to seize the gunman, friends of the sniper dragged him away, the sources said.

Dances To Drums

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon danced to the beat of African drums in the tiny village of Aburi yesterday, drawing enthusiastic applause from delighted tribesmen.

Mrs. Nixon is on a seven-day tour of three African nations.

From here, she travels to Adidjan, Ivory Coast, for a two-day stop before returning to Washington.

In Abidjan, she will be hosted by President Felix Houphouet-Boigny. Houphouet-Boigny speaks no English and Mrs. Nixon speaks no French.

Delaying Action

By U.P. INTDRNATIONAL

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today U.N. Middle East envoy Gunnar V. Jarring has informed Egypt he cannot resume his peace mission until Israel agrees to withdraw from Egyptian territory captured in the 1967 war.

The newspaper said Jarring made the statement to Yahya Abdel Kader, Egyptian ambassador to Moscow, during a 30-minute meeting in the Soviet capital Wednesday.

Rally Fizzles

STANFORD (UPI) — Radical professor H. Bruce Franklin's call to disrupt Stanford University classes because of a faculty recommendation that he be dismissed fizzled yesterday.

A noon rally was held in support of the Maoist professor but only about 150 students actaully marched to university president Richard Lyman's office to protest.

Lyman wasn't there and the rally broke up.

Franklin, 37, whose dismissal was recommended by a faculty committee following a six-week hearing, had called on students to wear disguises and invade the classes of the board members.

Hoover Reports Campus Unrest Declined In '71

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Both racial disturbances and campus unrest declined in the United States during 1971, the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported Thursday.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said there were 109 racial disturbances in U.S. cities in 1971, compared to 140 in 1970.

There were 85 racial disorders in secondary schools during the first four months of the current school year, compared to 160 during the comparable period the previous school year.

Hoover said in an annual FBI report it appeared that unrest on campuses of U.S. colleges and universities was decreasing.

"Campus unrest in 1971 was not so widespread or so massive as it was in the year 1970, and it appears that campus dissidence is cooling down," Hoover said.

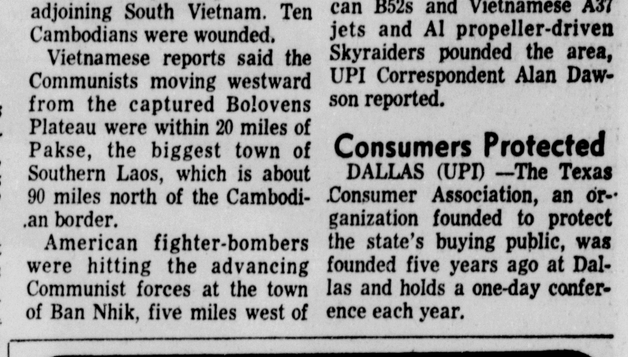

However, the FBI did not list the number of specific incidents on campuses during the year. A spokesman said this information would not be available until the FBI's fiscal year report is released for the period ending next June 30.

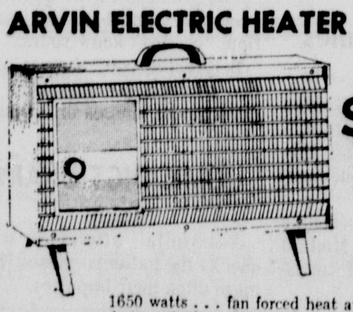

Campus protests were frequent in 1970, spurred in large part by the American invasion of Cambodia.

The figures on racial disturbances were not included in the report.

Death Penalty Is Under Review

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The State Supreme Court had under consideration today the question of whether the death penalty is constitutional.

The court sat for two hours Thursday listening to arguments for and against the death penalty by attorneys for the American Civil Liberties Union and the state attorney general's office.

The ACLU is challenging the legality of capital punishment on the basis that it has become so rare, and is so selectively applied, in the United States that it violates the Constitutional ban against "cruel and unusual punishment."

"For man deliberately and needlessly to take life, which he does not understand, and to inflict death, which leads he knows not where, is an act that eclipses every other cruelty humanity can mete out or bear," argued the ACLU brief by Stanford law professor Anthony Amsterdam.

In answer to a question by Justice Raymond L. Sullivan, Amsterdam argued that even if supporters of the death penalty could prove that it was a deterrent to would-be criminals, that would not make it constitutional.

"You can make a pretty strong case that boiling people in oil might have some deterrent value, but the government can't use it," Amsterdam argued.

The United States Supreme Court is scheduled to hear arguments later this month on the same issue. But, as the challenging attorneys pointed out Thursday, the State Supreme Court could set an important precedent by reaching a decision first.

Arguing for the state, Deputy Attorney General Ronald M. George said that capital punishment had been recognized throughout the history of the United States and of California as a legitimate form of punishment.

"All of us wish the death penalty were no longer necessary, but we have not reached that utopian state," he said.

"If there is this overwhelming trend away from the death penalty—and I dispute this—why have not the people of this nation, either by referendum or through their legislatures, abolished the death penalty?" he asked.

George argued that what the constitution forbids is "unnecessary" cruelty.

"Is there necessary cruelty?" asked Justice Stanley Mosk. "The constitution forbids cruelty—necessary or unnecessary."

The major thrust of the justice's questions seemed to be directed at the state's arguments that the death penalty is still acceptable punishment.

Early Jail Release For Gangster Cohen

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Former gangland boss Mickey Cohen, who was convicted in 1961 of income tax evasion and sentenced to 15 years in prison, got an early release today for good behavior.

Cohen, 58, left the U.S. Medical Center for federal prisoners at 10 a.m. CST in a white Cadillac. He sat in the front seat, looking straight ahead as the car, bearing Ohio plates, pulled through the front gate where a score of newsmen got only a brief glimpse of the former big-time West Coast gambler who liked to call himself the "bookie's bookie."

Cohen's first stop when he left prison was at a local cafe, where he ordered a piece of chocolate pie.

Tis brother, Harry Cohen of Los Angeles, and his brother's wife were seated in the back seat of the car. At the wheel was a man believed to be a physical therapist who will give Cohen daily treatments.

Cohen, once thought to be the chief of the Southern California underworld, was convicted of evading more than $392,000 in federal taxes during a five-year period in the late 1940s.

He had been a patient-inmate at the Medical Center since 1963. He was transferred there after being beaten on the head with a lead pipe by another prisoner at the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Prior Criminal Records Booted By State Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The State Supreme Court ruled unanimously Thursday that a trial judge may withhold a defendant's criminal record from a jury under certain circumstances.

Prosecutors have often emphasized the defendant's prior record in arguments to the jury instead of the evidence of the particular crime he was being tried for.

Chief Justice Donald R. Wright, who wrote the decision, cautioned that the ruling would not give a free rein to the defendants.

He concluded that generally prior felony convictions may be presented to and considered by the panel.

However, the ruling did set up the guidelines for exceptions that included any conviction that occurred many years ago if the defendant has since had a "clean record."

Justice Wright specified the decision is not to be applied to criminal trials which have already been completed.

The decision came on an appeal by Harvey Lynn Beagle II, a Los Angeles man convicted of arson. The court issued the new ruling on evidence but upheld Beagle's conviction.

Alioto Names Kin To City Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has named a relative to a $16,004-a year post as an executive aide.

Alioto announced Thursday he had appointed James B. Burleson Jr., 37, husband of Mrs. Alioto's niece.

The mayor said that under Burleson the job is expected to be enlarged to include "basic legislative research and the development of new programs."

Burleson fills a position vacated by Bernard J. Orsi who was promoted to general manager of the civil service system.

Another Angela Venue Change?

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Angela Davis' chief defense attorney says he may seek a second change of venue for the former UCLA instructor's murder trial.

"We have contested the move to Santa Clara County all along," attorney Howard Moore said Thursday.

Miss Davis, 27, was moved here from Marin County, where she was charged with supplying the guns used in a 1970 courtroom escape attempt and shooting in which a judge and three others died.

Moore, who requested the trial be moved from Marin County, said at the time that she could only get a fair trial in San Francisco.

Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, the last judge to preside over pre-trial proceedings, accepted the change of venue request but designated Santa Clara County, about 40 miles south of San Francisco.

Moore said he may file a motion for another move next Monday, because, among other reasons, Santa Clara County is overwhelmingly a white, middle-class area.

Jet Crash Off Spain Kills 104

IBIZA, Spain (UPI)—An Iberian airlines Caravelle jet flying in rain and fog hit the side of a mountain today as it came in too low for a landing on this Mediterranean resort island. It exploded on impact, killing all 104 persons aboard.

Iberian airlines said one of the victims was an American, listed as Jess Desak of New York City. The only other foreign name on the passenger list was a German named Fricker.

The plane carried six crew and 98 passengers including six babies on the flight from Madrid and Valencia. It is certified to carry 96 passengers, Iberia said.

The site of the crash at 1,515-foot Mount Atalaysa, highest on the island, is on the southeastern part of the island and was in the plane's normal approach path but its peak was shrouded by rain, fog and low-lying clouds. Wreckage was strewn over a two mile area, barely five miles from Ibiza airport.

The Ibiza control tower reported it lost contact with the plane shortly after 12:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. EST) minutes before it was scheduled to land. There were no reports of technical failure in the airport's last contact with the crew.

The crash was Spain's worst since a chartered British Dan-air Comet crashed near Barcelona with a loss of 112 lives on July 3, 1970.

In another crash, a DC6 airliner with 23 persons aboard crashed in a rugged area of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula last night. Search planes reported there was no sign of life.

HIJACK

but the Federal Aviation Agency later said the air pirates were heading for Havana.

It was the first hijack of the new year.

The hijackers first demanded that they be flown to Havana, but once on the ground at Tampa, they said they wanted to go to Africa.

They were told their plane did not have the range for a trans-Atlantic trip, and finally settled again on Cuba.

U.S. Aviation authorities advised Cuba that the plane was on its way.

One of the fuel truck drivers who helped refuel the jet before the Havana flight said the pilot appeared "calm."

Airline officials refused to release the names of the crew, saying they did not want to worry their families.

The plane landed at Tampa International at 9:33 a.m. and the entire terminal was closed at the insistence of the tough-talking air pirates who radioed ahead that they didn't want "to see anyone."

FBI agents shooed everyone inside the terminal, and the jet taxied to the extreme north end of the airport's only usable runway. The other runway is under repair, and thus all traffic in and out of Tampa was cut off.

Paul McAlester, spokesman for the Hillsborough county aviation authority, said the hijackers were informed that the only trans-Atlantic planes servicing Tampa were two 747's and that neither were presently at the terminal.

When the jet landed at Tampa, it taxied out to the extreme north end of the runway, and thus had to be refueled with tanker truck. Refueling at Tampa International is normally done through underground lines, and thus trucks had to be brought in from nearby McDill Air Force Base.

The Air Force insignia on the big yellow trucks was painted over with black paint before the first truck, driven by black Air Force Staff Sergeant Harry Frierson, approached the plane.

Unloading of the first truck took about a half hour, and when Frierson returned to the terminal, FBI agents handed him a pack of wanted posters to see if he could identify the hijacker. It was not known whether Frierson was able to make the identifications.

A second truck was dispatched, but shortly thereafter the hijackers demanded that Frierson return to the plane.

BOMBS

also sent to media in at least Chicago and San Francisco.

Bank records varied as to the time the boxes were rented, and to the time the last visitations were made to the box vaults in the various cities.

Roy Moore, agent in charge of the FBI office in Chicago, noted that the boxes checked in Chicago were small. Asked to comment on the bomb, he said "If I could visualize it, it would be black power and some kind of an alarm clock because of the small box."

At the Northern Trust Company in Chicago, Fred Cutler, a locksmith working at a lock company, drilled the lock of the box named in the letter, and then was asked to leave the vault area, while bomb squad members worked on the contents. "I'm still shaking from it," he said.

The anonymous letters were received by a san Francisco radio station and two Chicago newspapers Thursday. The one received in San Francisco had been mailed from Chicago on Wednesday.

Receipt of the letters came some hours before time clocks were due to release the doore on the various bank vaults, and police and FBI agents gathered at all the banks hours before regular opening of business time. (eliminates earlier)

In Chicago, devices were found in boxes at the First National Bank of Chicago, at the Northern Trust Co. and at the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co. it was disclosed by Lt. Edward Neville, chief of the Chicago police bomb and arson squad.

"We found three devices at the three banks," he said.

HOSPITAL

cost. Schneider, the other dissenter, said he was not convinced the district could pay the bonds from revenue without increasing taxes.

Others argued initial expansion might be less expensive, but that additions in another 10 or 15 years would be more costly than if a new site were selected on land flatter than the Hillcrest location.

They also urged a convenient location for the new facility, since half of Petaluma's population is east of Highway 101. And they noted that the district includes Rohnert Park and Cotati, which could better be served with a hospital with freeway access.

The board gave some consideration to funding the project through general obligation bonds, but had little faith in voter approval. Munib said too many factors could combine to defeat general obligation bonds because eastsiders would vote against a westside hospital, westsiders would vote against an eastside hospital and Rohnert Park and Cotati residents would probably vote against any hospital in Petaluma.

The board agreed that committees would be formed to seek a site for construction, an architect and a new use for Hillcrest. In the past, Hillcrest has been mentioned as a facility that would meet special needs, such as maternity, geriatrics, out patient services or mental health.

OBITUARIES

Henry Klyce, 49, Dies; Rites Held

Private funeral was held yesterday for Melvin Henry Klyce of Mill Valley, a San Francisco structural engineer and member of a pioneer Mill Valley family.

Klyce, 49, died yesterday at his home, 135 Marlin Avenue, after a 16-month illness.

He was a third generation Mill Valley resident. His grandparents, Harvey A. and Carrie G. Klyce, moved to the town as newlyweds in the 1890s where Klyce, a contractor, built more than 330 buildings, including his own home. He also served as mayor of Mill Valley from 1910 to 1914.

Carrie Klyce was the last surviving founder of the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club when she died in 1967 at the age of 94.

Melvin Klyce was a partner in the San Francisco structural engineering firm of H. J. Brunnier Associates. He was a 1940 graduate of Tamalpais High School and served in the Pacific Theater during World War II, where he conducted more than 50 bombing missions over Japan, the Philippines and Okinawa as a first lieutenant in the Army Air Force.

He was a member of Mill Valley post 284 of the American Legion and the Structural Engineers of California.

Survivors include his wife, Audre Burbeck Klyce and two daughters, Janis A. and Christine M., all of the home address; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Klyce of Mill Valley; two brothers, Alfred of Mill Valley and Harvey of San Rafael, and a sister, Mabel Moylan of Sebastopol.

PRISON

in burden to the property taxpayers of Marin County because of the prison," Mitchell said. "The state's reimbursement to the county is not anywhere near equitable."

Mitchell made no mention of the offsetting factor of San Quentin's $12 million annual budget. Warden Louis A. Nelson said yesterday that $9 million of the total goes as payroll to the prison's 700 employees. Most of the staff live in Marin County, Nelson said. Despite the planned closing, however, a state aid said, there is an "outside chance" that a new maximum sdcurity facility — employing the latest ideas in penal design and housing only 400 convicts — might be built at San Quentin to replace the fortress-like structures that have at times bulged with 5,000 inmates.

Philip D. Guthrie, spokesman for the state Department of corrections, said the Reagan administration plans to budget $16 million for construction in the 1973-74 fiscal year to build a small prison in Northern California and another in the south. The first step will come next week, when Reagan will include a request for $150,00 planning funds in the $7 billion budget he will submit to the Legislature.

"This really is quite a significent, almost symbolic move at a time when there is a lot of concern about prison reform," Guthrie said.

He explained that smaller prisons would provide better conditions for psychiatric and rehabilitative work with inmates, a chance to relate better with nearby communities in reintegrating the inmates to public life, and would offer better security, both for prison staffs and the inmates themselves.

Eleven inmates and three guards died violently in San Quentin last year.

Guthrie denied that the San Quentin uprising last Aug. 21, in which six persons died, was the real reason for the administration's decision to close San Quentin.

Guthrie cited shrinkage of the state's inmate population from 9,000 men two years ago to a low today of about 20,000; pressure from Raymond K. Procunier, state director of corrections, and the work of prison reform groups.

Procunier, in recent months, had spurred the Adult Authority to take the first steps in replacing the much-criticized indeterminate sentence policy with a system of letting the prisoner know when he could expect freedom — if he made sufficient progress in rehabilitation.

depended upon it. I wasn't going to cut funds."

Mailliard said he has a "very strong inclination to back up the President once he makes a decision" and "to support my country" even though it might be an "old-fashioned notion."

Mailliard said Peace Corps appropriations had been cut "over my strenuous objections," and that he would try to have them restored.

As for Central Intelligence Agency funds, he said appropriations weren't under the jurisdiction of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, instead coming through other agencies, mainly the Defense Department.

He said he supported military aid to Israel in order to maintain a balance of power in the Middle East.

JOSEPH DeBORBA

Joseph R. DeBorba, of Novato, a longtime resident of that city, died in a local hospital yesterday after a short illness. He was 83.

DeBorba entered the hospital last month after falling at his home and breaking his shoulders, according to Donald L. Cornish, deputy coroner. Probable cause of death was pneumonia, Cornish said.

DeBorba's parents ran dairy cattle on the Deer Island Ranch between Black Point Road and Olive Avenue, where he was reared. He moved to Tiburon in 1965, but moved back to his home town in 1970.

DeBorba owned a market and was a partner in a butcher shop until the depression, when he became a correctional officer at San Quentin. He worked there 25 years before his retirement in 1958.

He was a member of the Senior Citizens of Novato, two Portuguese fraternal orders in Novato and the California State Employees Association.

Also surviving are a brother, Dr. Frank J. DeBorba of Fremont, and a sister, Mary Almada of Novato.

Mass of the Resurrection will be said at 10 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Sunday at Keaton's Chapel of Marin. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

A Unanimous 'No' Vote On Strawberry Homes

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A controversial plan for nine homes on Strawberry Point was rejected yesterday by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission in a record "no" vote by all 21 commissioners present.

Developer Stanley W. Taylor, who four years ago won a court suit against the county to subdivide his property on the east side of the peninsula, said after the vote that he will file suit shortly against the commission in Marin County Superior Court.

Only two other unanimous denials have been voted by the commission since it was formed more than six years ago, one of them a 16-0 vote against San Anselmo developer Frank Burke's aborted plan for the Corte Madera marshlands.

In two other Richardson Bay matters yesterday, commissioners unanimously approved a 180-unit apartment project in Mill Valley west of the Shelter Cove apartments and heard a plea by marina developers to delete the requirement that new houseboats float at all times. A vote on the latter was scheduled for the Jan. 20 meeting.

Taylor's project also saw another BCDC record set — the longest staff recommendation for denial in the commission's history.

Taylor claimed he needed to extend the planned homes — in the 300 block of East Strawberry Drive — out over the bay on pilings because the lots were too shallow. But the commission's staff declared that he had created his own problem by subdividing the lots so that they were not buildable without extending them over the bay.

Instead of building homes over the bay, the staff concluded, Taylor simple could resubdivide to use more upland adjacent property he also owns.

The 180-unit apartment project in Mill Valley won approval after it was redrafted to eliminate building some units out over the bay on pilings. The commission's staff recommended its approval.

The project, proposed by Sanford Diller of Sunnyvale, was opposed by several conservation organizations which objected it would not provide adequate public access to the shoreline. The staff, however, disagreed, and it was approved, 21-0.

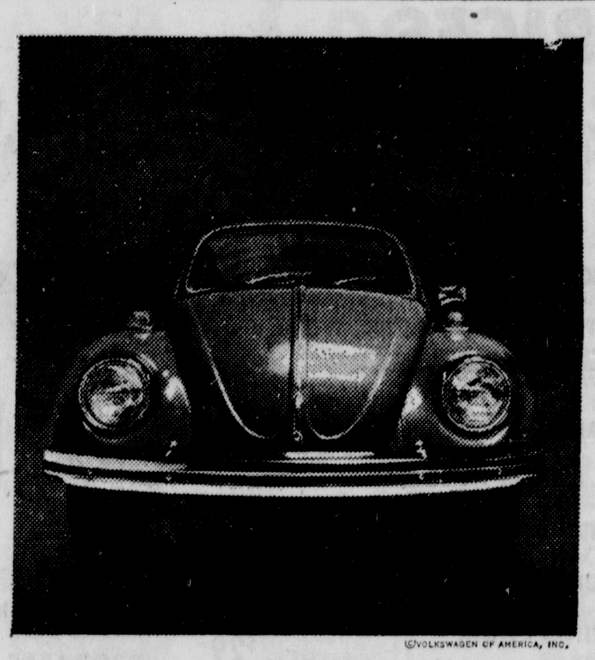

The seven, two-story apartment buildings, private clubhouse and swimming pool will require .19 of an acre of new fill to stabilize the shoreline.

The case for the houseboat marina developers was presented by Sausalito attorney Hugh Lawrence, who displayed elaborate data purporting to show that new houseboats would sit on the bay bottom only 7 per cent of the time if no dredging were done.

The commission's staff recommended months ago that the flotation requirement be retained, and Lawrence had postponed a vote to get the tidal data.

His conclusion, however, was disputed by Commissioner F.J. Hortig, executive officer of the State Lands Commission. Hortig argued that Lawrence's own data showed houseboats would sit on the bay bottom at least 85 per cent of the time.

Lawrence previously cautioned that cleaning up the houseboat community would be financially infeasible with the added cost of dredging that would enable the new houseboats to float at all times.

24 years in the making.

We'd like to thank the makers of the other new economy cars for giving us such a nice head start.

It gave us time to develop an inspection system so ridiculously scrupulous that it expects every VW to pass 16,000 examinations.

It allowed us to find out (at a reasonably scientific pace) how we could double our horsepower without doubling the cost of your horsepower. (The VW still gets about 26 miles to the gallon and requests only a smidgen of oil.)

It permitted us to work on things that didn't even have to do with the actual making of the car. Medi-car, the Volkswagen Diagnosis System, for example. Electronic equipment that can spot trouble in a car before it gets to be trouble. When you buy a new VW, you get 4 free Medi-car checkups.

Of course, it took great fortitude to resist squandering our time on phony styling improvements.

CORTE MADERA ISSUE

Fire Department Upgrading Urged

By LARRY MOWELL

A properly manned and trained fire department could have prevented some of the damage to two of three homes ravaged by fire in east Corte Madera Sept. 16, according to one of the town's two fire consultants.

Watsonville Fire Chief Bryce W. Connick told an eight-man citizens committee Wednesday that the fire which sparked present scrutiny of town fire protection "got away from" the fire department, according to Herber C. Leney, a member of the committee.

However, according to Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels, Connick was careful to add that the department did the best it could under tme circumstances.

Connick told the committee the department does not have the manpower to handle a structural fire of the type that occurred on Constitution Drive in September, Bartels said.

As a stop-gap measure to prevent such disasters, Leney moved to recommend hiring four new firemen by May 1. The motion died without a second, Bartels said.

Connick and Watsonville engineer Bill S. Ingram, his partner in a controversial study of the fire defenses, made their first public statements on the study during three hours of discussion with the committee and an audience of about 50, including Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, Leney said.

Leney said the meeting was calmer than he expected, but letters from Colthurst, Councilman Harold B. Wagstaff — a volunteer fireman and committee member — and the volunteer firemen's group — all blasting the report — were read, Leney said.

Colthurst wrote: "The report, in my judgment is amateurish and shallow, so devoid of hard facts as to be completely unacceptable to me. No effort has been made to assemble vital facts and apply these facts to a workable plan to submit to your committee. Instead, the consultants took the shotgun approach and thereby destroyed their credibility and did the Town of Corte Madera a great disservice."

Colthurst suggested that Connick and Ingram be fired although their job is 95 per cent complete. Leney said the committee, which had been divided on whether to hire consultants in the first place, split 4-4 in a vote to fire them.

Leney said he voted to end the study because the preliminary report contains enough information to act on immediately.

Leney said a letter from him as president of the Mariner Cove Improvement Association and from another east Corte Madera group were read. Each asked the town to hire more firemen immediately to man the town's substation.

Wagstaff's letter, which was printed as a letter to the editor in the Independent-Journal, called the consultants' report a "hatchet job" and said Corte Madera compared favorably with other communities in preventing fire loss.

Connick said the town had been lucky to escape a major fire, according to Leney.

The statement was supported by a letter from John H. McGoran of 105 Granada Drive, who called the incident a "firefighting fiasco," Leney said.

The letters of both Wagstaff and the volunteer firemen, drafted by secretary Jack Forster, denied the volunteers use a blackball system of choosing members, as claimed by the consultants. Connick, Leney said, told the committee that various people had told him of the method's use.

Connick also reiterated points made in the report: that the water supply is inadequate in the hills, roads are too narrow, not enough cooperation exists with neighboring towns and a station should be centrally located near the freeway.

The preliminary report, delivered Dec. 23, called the town fire department undermanned, poorly equipped and inadequately trained. It recommended $500,000 in capital improvements and the addition of 13 regulars and about 20 volunteers to the force of five men and 14 volunteers.

The final document is expected in mid-February, Leney said.

The committee also asked the town council to relieve it of the task of preparing and distributing a questionnaire in the town because members felt the matter has become too technical, Bartels said.

Narcotics Stolen From Pharmacy

An undetermined amount of narcotics and $375 in cash were stolen last night in a burglary of DeMartini Pharmacy, 21 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo police reported today.

A large rock was thrown through a glass door at the side of the building to gain entrance to the store, police said.

Boy, 6, Finks On His Brothers

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI)— "Show and Tell," an institution in American elementary schools, took on a new face at Walt Zimmerman School when a 6-year-old first grader held up the marking pen he brought to class that day.

"This is a marker pen which my two older brothers gave me," he said proudly.

"They stole it from Bloomington High School."

The boy's teacher called sheriff's deputies, detectives talked to the boy's mother and in his home Thursday they found a record player, tape recorder, electrical appliances, $400 worth of table ware and other items, all reported stolen from Bloomington High School.

Her older sons, 14 and 15, were arrested and turned over to juvenile authorities.

New Report On POW Release

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A California congressman has quoted a high Viet Cong official that if the United States sets a firm date for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina, all American war prisoners will be released.

Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-4th District, said he had received a telegram from Nguyen Van Tien, the second-ranking member of the National Liberation Front negotiating team in Paris, that described President Nixon's statement to the contrary as a "mere concoction."

Leggett said he wired the Viet Cong official Jan. 3 after Nixon indicated in a television interview the NLF had refused to release U.S. prisoners in return for an American withdrawal date.

Ousted Tam Officer Leads In New Vote

Paul Cohen, former Tamalpais High School sopmomore class president who was recalled by his classmates Dec. 10, led a four-manfield in student balloting yesterday to fill his old post, but faces a runoff with the second highest vote-getter.

Cohen, also chairman of the Marin County Youth Commission, will face Glen Sheehan in a runoff election Tuesday, according to John R. McSween, dean of student activities.

The two were trailed by John May and John Biestman in yesterday's voting, McSween said, with 274 out of roughly 450 sophomores casting ballots.

In keeping with school policy, McSween declined to release exact vote totals, but did say Cohen and Sheehan each got about one-third of the vote and Cohen led Sheehan by "three or four votes."

He said the student government's election committee decided, with the consent of the candidates, to hold the runoff because neither candidate received a majority of the vote.

Cohen was recalled by his classmates in December in what was described by McSween as a "very close vote." Under the school's constitution, however, Cohen was allowed to run to regain his old seat.

Two other student leaders, president Nicholas Harris and vice-president Matthew White, beat back a recall effort earlier in December.

All three removal attempts were spearheaded by sophomore Lars P. Enevoldsen, who was defeated by Cohen in 1970 for the sophomore class presidency.

Enevoldsen had initiated the recall because, he said, the three "don't take their jobs seriously and don't represent most of the students" at the school.

Embassy Move

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India and North Vietnam today raised their diplomatic relations to embassy level, the foreign Ministry announced.

Corps Asked For Dredge Permit

Construction Aggregates Corp. of San Francisco has asked the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to dredge sand from the bottom of San Francisco Bay.

One dredging area lies between Sausalito and Angel Island; the other two areas sought in the permit are off San Francisco and Alcatraz Island. The firm has obtained clearances from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and the state Water Resources Control Board.

Fairfax Issue Opens Candidate Doors

The Fairfax City Council last night rejected a request that it immediately rezone the Marin Town and Country Club property to prevent residential development of the parcel.

The council's action opened the door for a ballot issue on the rezoning and put two citizens into the running for the city council in the April 11 election.

Priscilla C. Gray chairman of a citizens group seeking the rezoning of the town and country club property, said she would be a candidate and attorney Albert E. Gately, who lost by seven votes in a bid for the council in 1970, said he was "pretty sure" he would run.

Last night's council meeting, a public hearing on the city's proposed new zoning ordinance, also brought a denial from the owner of the town and country club property that it had been sold.

The council — acting on the advice of its city attorney — decided to hold public hearings on the entire zoning ordinance proposal, section by section, instead of giving first consideration to a section which would create a new commercial recreation zone and place the town and country club property in it.

Immediate action by the council had been sought by Mrs. Gray's group, a committee to Preserve Land and Nature (PLAN).

The committee already has collected sufficient signatures to place the town and country club zoning on the ballot, and Mrs. Gray said today the signed petitions would be presented to the city clerk Monday.

The group had urged the council to enact the zoning ordinance section itself, making the ballot issue unnecessary.

But City Atty. Wallace S. Myers told the council last night that it could not act on just one section of the proposed ordinance. The council set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Feb. 3 to discuss single-family residential zones.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connell reassured a disappointed audience that the town and country property cannot be developed for residential use immediately anyway because it is presently zoned for commercial use. "You won't see any bulldozers coming over the hill," he said.

But O'Connell did speak out against the proposed commercial-recreation zoning, saying it would be unfair to the owner of the property. "It's like putting a padlock on his property," he said. "You're telling him he can't do something, but you're not telling him what he can do."

Questions about exactly who does own the property may have been cleared up when owner Max Friedman told the council it had not been sold.

Friedman had said in July that it had been sold for an undisclosed price.

But he said last night the "confusion here (before the council) has created so much confusion that we don't know exactly what we're going to do with the property."

His attorney, Leland H. Jordan, said "the property is not committed to any developer or any particular development."

At present, no one has an option on the property," Jordan said.

Friedman reportedly had been negotiating with Kaiser-Aetna Corp., an Oakland land development company, for sale of the 23.5 acre parcel. The company had said it planned to build 350 to 450 apartment units on the site.

Old Adobe Construction Lagging

The Old Adobe School District board, after hearing that construction is behind schedule on a new school and that double sessions may stretch into March, assigned a member last night to meet with the Petaluma Planning Commission to discuss community growth problems.

Board members agreed that the planning commission, in preparing an environmental design plan for the community, should be given enrollment information that might assist it in development of a master plan.

Trustee Carleton Reinaldo was assigned to attend a commission meeting to give information on current crowding problems, as well as plans for future building.

Schools Supt. Dean D. Magowan said a proposal under the design plan to limit eastside growth to 300 new homes per year would give the district an estimated growth of 150 new students per year. He noted that the district had grown by 500 students in the past year to its current enrollment of 2,065 students, and said the slower growth rate would be healthy.

He said that strikes, slow delivery of materials and late installation of a transformer have slowed work at the New Miwok Valley School on St. Francis Drive. He said he hoped work might still be complete by the beginning of March.

Air West Passenger Plan To Be Unveiled

Hughes Air West will unveil Monday its plans to provide passenger service at Hamilton Air Force Base, the Independent-Journal learned today.

George Galvin, spokesman for the airline, said he had asked for time to present his firm's proposal to an Association of Bay Area Governments hearing on an overall plan for Bay Area airport development at 2 p.m. Monday in San Jose City Hall.

Galvin said he would seek ABAG encouragement before the firm begins further negotiations with Marin County authorities.

Two other lines, Golden Pacific and Golden West, previously have talked of arranging for a terminal adjoining the base in order to provide commuter service to major Bay Area airports. The Air Force has taken the position the airlines must negotiate with a "responsible political agency" — the county — before allowing use of Hamilton runways.

Galvin said today that a recent report by a presidential commission on joint civilian use of military air bases listed Hamilton as a desirable site for joint use.

He said it would be premature to announce what service would be offered from Hamilton, except that it would not be shuttle operations. He said passengers might fly directly from Hamilton to Southern California or Oregon, if the plan becomes a reality.

Guilty Plea To Store Burglary

George Kenneth Martin, 21, of Anaheim, Orange County, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to burglarizing a San Rafael sporting goods store Dec. 28.

He was bound over to superior court where a sentencing date will be set Monday.

Martin was arrested inside the Western Sport Shop, 902 Third Street, when police responded to an alarm at 12:05 a.m. Dec. 28.

Middle-Income Housing 'Vital'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The newly installed president of the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce said Thursday more middle-income housing is vital to the city's future.

However, Chamber President James Stretch said, it is almost impossible to afford.

"Even if we had land that was almost free and low-cost financing, the cost of construction would drive out even middle-income families in the $15,000 to $20,000 a year bracket," Stretch told a news conference.

Stretch, an insurance company vice president, said it might be possible to achieve lower costs by amassing substantial enough parcels of land for large projects.

Policeman-Teller Captures Bandit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A 24-year-old man was captured by a bank teller Thursday moments after he allegedly robbed a Bank of America branch of $560.

The teller was off-duty policeman Lloyd Ritter.

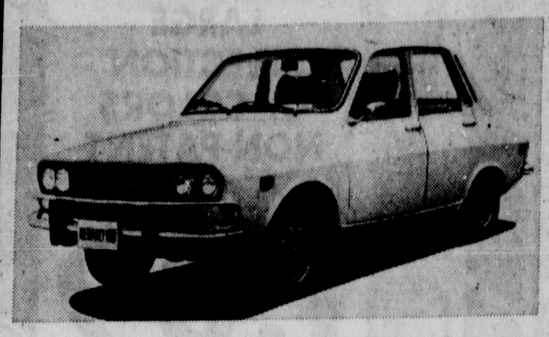

Ritter chased the suspect for three blocks and subdued him after a brief struggle.

The suspect was identified as Ray Jones of Oakland.

A woman teller, Mrs. Marie Ferrari, 43, said the robber had simulated a handgun in his pocket and handed her a note reading "Everybody's life is in your hands. Hand over all your money."

Fund Bar Sought For Legal Unit

The Marin County Administrator's Office said today it is seeking to withhold county funds from the debt-ridden Legal Aid Society of Marin pending investigation of the money's use.

The action involves about $6,500 approved last month by the county board of supervisors to cover what the legal agency claimed was a deficit in operating expenses.

However, on Wednesday, the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council also approved forwarding an application from Legal Aid for about $10,000 in federal funds to make up the deficit.

In requesting county help last month, the society said it had been unable to get federal funding to cover the growing deficit. It said it would be forced to close its doors if it received no help from the county.

Whether its application to the EOC — local arm of the Office of Economic Opportunity — is to cover the same deficit the county thought it was paying for was not clear.

Gerald J. Hood of the County Human Rights Department and a new member on the EOC board said his impression of the application was that it was to cover the same deficit.

The director of the Legal Aid Society, Charles Baumbach, told the Independent-Journal today that the application wasn't intended to cover any deficit even though it reads that way.

Rather, he said, the $10,000 application was actually a $2,500 salary increase request for himself and that the remaining $7,500 requested was a mistake. He said the application was started through channels months before the agency requested county support.

Robert Peterson of the county administrator's office — also a member of the EOC board — said he was confused and was recommending to the supervisors Tuesday that they stop payment to the agency while the question of use is studied.

Cockfight Arena

MANILA (UPI) —The outgoing city council board has approved establishment of a cockfighting arena in Manila. Under the measure, 5 per cent of the arena's monthly gross gate receipts will go to city coffers.

"I got more than I asked for at Fidelity..." I asked Fidelity for the highest interest paying account they had. I depend on the interest for my income. I knew no one else would pay more. But I got more than I asked for. They showed me how I could stretch out my savings with a Fidelity Annuity Plan. Now I get a check every month for 10 years. My checks include both interest and part principal. The funds not being used earn daily interest. It's surprising how big those checks are and there's no fee for this service."

Marin County residents are proud of their civic center, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. Two of Fidelity's offices (San Rafael and Mill Valley) serve marvelous Marin.

$1.3 Million Building Suit Thrown Out

A $1.3 million suit against the City of Mill Valley, arising from the temporary Southern Marin building ban, was dismissed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Judge E. Warren McGuire agreed with the city's contention that the suit did not contain sufficient information and that it was filed too late.

Edward H. and Viki Kuykendall of Mill Valley filed the suit Oct. 29 after the Regional Water Quality Control Board imposed an interim building ban in the region because of sewage discharges into Richardson Bay.

The Kuykendalls, developers of the Blithedale Park subdivision, said the city had received more than $200,000 from the subdivision and that a sanitary and storm sewer system had been completed for the 22-lot property.

Eight of the lots were sold and residences constructed and hooked up to the sewer system, they said, when the city refused beginning July 6 to grant further building permits because of the cease and desist order by the water quality control board.

They sought a court order directing the city to issue four building permits and to award them $1.3 million in damages.

But McGuire agreed with Mill Valley's city attorney, Leland H. Jordan, that the Kuykendalls' petition did not contain a complete record of the water quality control board's proceedings regarding the ban and that it had not been filed within 30 days of the ban — both required by law.

Another Prison Term For Burglar

A San Francisco man, already serving a prison sentence for car theft, was given an additional prison sentence yesterday for the burglary of a Sausalito home in May 1970.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court sentenced Donnell R. Johnson to state prison after a jury of eight women and four men returned a guilty verdict following about an hour's deliberation.

The trial started Wednesday.

Johnson's car theft conviction stems from his arrest and trial in San Francisco while he was a fugitive in the Sausalito case, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, prosecutor.

Johnson, 26, also known as Roland R. Hayes, was arrested May 26, 1970, outside the residence of Lawrence I. Loma at 49 Upper Central Avenue. The house had been burglarized.

McGuire ordered the new sentence, which is one to 15 years, to run concurrent with his San Francisco sentence.

City Manager's Brief Tenure

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI)—The first city manager of the new city of Irvine has set a record for tenure that may never be broken.

He was in office 50 hours before being fired.

The City Council picked Stanley Morgan, 30, over six other applicants Monday night to fill the post for 90 days. The council then fired him Thursday night, saying it was based on "investigation and re-examination of Morgan's resume and qualifications."

Morgan indicated it was because he had not mentioned that he is vice president of a securities firm based in the neighboring town of Tustin.

The council decided to meet again Saturday and pick another city manager, the second of the week.

Inmate Testifies Jackson, Drumgo Beat Up Guard

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A convict testified Thursday that he saw black revolutionary George Jackson, a man he "admired and loved", beat a white Soledad Prison guard with a flashlight and then push him from third-tier railing to a concrete floor below.

Thomas A. Yorke, serving time for manslaughter, said his life was in danger for testifying at the trial of the two surviving "Soledad Brothers", charged with killing guard John V. Mills Jan. 17, 1970.

Yorke, who is also black, said he saw Jackson and Fleeta Drumgo pounding Mills with their fists in the prison's "Y" wing. He said defendant John Cluchette was at the scene but did not say if he participated.

The key state witness was to continue testimony today.

Jackson, a black revolutionary killed during an August outbreak at San Quentin Prison where he was awaiting trial for Mills' death, beat the guard and slid him between the bars of the third tier of cells, from where he fell to the first tier floor, Yorke testified.

The witness said he saw the altercation from cell 344, across the wing and "there's been a bond on my life," since the incident.

Yorke said authorities would "throw him to the wolves" if he didn't testify and te convicts would "get him" if he did. Since the killing, Yorke said, he has been moved from prison to prison because "the word went out" that he would be a witness.

"I felt I couldn't survive in any prison in California," said the nervous, slightly built convict.

"He was a very beautiful example of what a black man should be. I loved him very much," said Yorke.

Yorke admitted he lost the friendship of Cluchette during an argument over what television program to watch.

"I was called a nigger by Cluchette and I felt this was way out in left field," said Yorke. "We got into a verbal hassle. Cluchette invited me up to the shower room. I got a mop handle and went up there but some of the guys broke it up.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

San Rafael Joe's A Cozy Place; West End Villa Now Medallion

The making of a successful restaurateur is not necessarily in his soup, salad or sauce — more often than not it's in his blood.

Either he was born that way or he grew up in the profession.

And when you combine an entire family in the operation it's hard to miss. If you want a good example of this you don't have far to look. There's a place on downtown Fourth Street, San Rafael that fits the picture — San Rafael Joe's.

Technically this is a two-family operation — Hector and Nancy Rubini and Guido and Teresa Farina. But it might as well be one, for Teresa is Hector's sister. This brings them all together in work and play and they seem to enjoy it. Joe's operates just about as smoothly as any restaurant can operate.

Of course, the Rubinis and the Farinas have been at it a long time. Oldtimers will remember that once they had three Marin restaurants — San Rafael Joe's (located then a few doors east of the present restaurant), Rubini's in Fairfax (that's how Rubini's got its name) and Novato Joe's in the Nave Shopping Center in Novato.

Conducting three separate ventures split up the families and it was a happy day when Rubini's and Novato Joe's were sold and everyone returned to the original project in San Rafael, which must now be close to 25 years old. I doubt that there is any more talk of spreading out again.

Joe's is one of my favorite New Year's Eve haunts and it was there we went this year. For a place with no special program for that occasion it does an excellent job of bringing people together. You can credit Larry Vannucci at the Baldwin with some of this. He's another professional whose career is virgually in his blood. He's been an organst for about 27 years and a musician since he was 10 years old.

THE NAME CHANGE at Second and G Streets, San Rafael is now official.

It's no longer Bill and Adolph's West End Villa or Adolph's West End Villa — or even West End Villa.

From the first of the year it has been and will be The Medallion.

A FUN PLACE, if there ever was one, is Kleist's Heidelberg in Santa Rosa.

Actually Kleist's is located in Windsor. Turn off the 101 Highway at Fulton, north of Santa Rosa, and follow the Old Redwood Highway north a few miles until you come to it. The number is 6422.

There's a bar and lounge and the decor is so typically German you'd swear it's the Rhine that lies a few miles west instead of the Russian River.

It's open for lunches and dinners from 11 a.m. Thursdays through Sundays throughout the year. The food is German, as you would expect from the name. The smorgasbord is reasonable. It's great for lunch. There's smorgasbord at night, too, and about 10 dinner entrees from rindsroladen, sauerbraten and wiener schnitzel a la Holstein to roast duck, steak, bratwurst, kochwurst, frankfurters, hamburger steak and a number of a la carte items. George Kleist is the chef.

The fun part is on Saturday and Sunday nights. The dance floor is spacious and surrounded by tables. Ken and Doris Ensele have been playing here for the past six years — Ken at the accordion and Doris at the organ and special sound effects. Their music is the sort of thing everyone over 30 would like. No rock — just old time favorites and European hits. Occasionally you'll hear a man's voice singing. That's George in the Kitchen picking up the mike while he goes on with his strudel or potato pancakes.

If you can do the polka, schottishe and laendler on the dance floor you'll have plenty of chance and company.

Such a place in Marin County wouldn't be quite the same. Windsor is the ideal location for it.

ONE MARIN RESTAURANT that could use more space — and fill it — is Marin Joe's in Corte Madera.

I understand the Della Santinas intend to do something about it. They're going to add another dining room. Architect Harold B. Wagstaff of San Anselmo is working on the plans.

LOOK FOR EXPANSION also at the Sub Hut, 4380 Redwood Highway, Northgate Industrial Park. Architect Milton Chambers has come up with plans for a 700-square-foot addition.

THE MONTHLY gourmet buffet concerts of the Kensington Trio and Tamal Food Service in San Anselmo can sometimes handle a few last-day reservations.

There's one scheduled for tomorrow night in Alexander Hall, 48 Kensington Road, San Anselmo. Call Tamal Food Service to make a reservation before you go. Dinner and concert are $4.75 per person.

CALIFORNIANS like their beer as well as wine, and according to George Ososke of Kent Woodlands, 1971 was a banner year for the malt beverage.

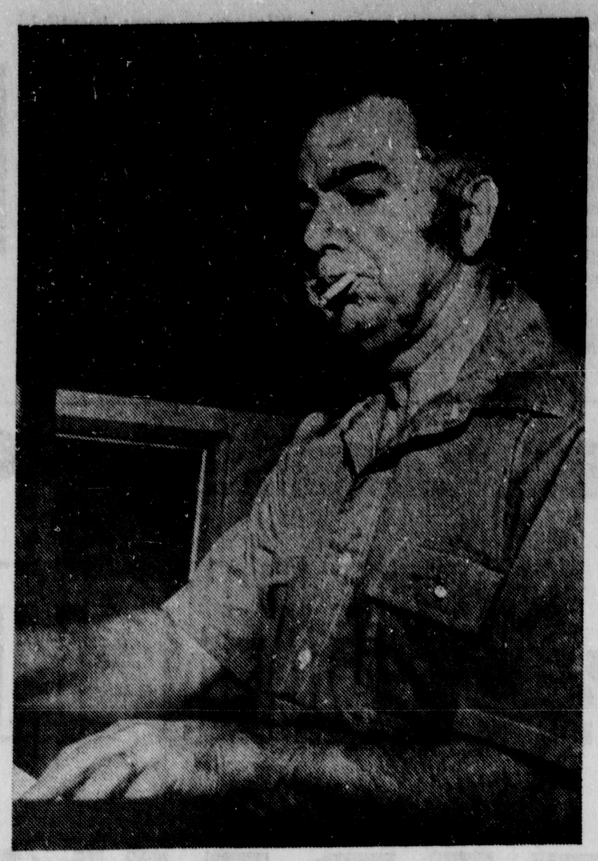

Ososke, who is vice president and western district director of the United States Brewers Association, reports that this state's residents consumed 12.3 million barrels of beer last year and in so doing poured more than $225 million of tax money into federal, state and local treasuries.

THERE'S NO DEFINITE NEWS on the change of ownership of the Otafuku restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, but it does appear there might be a reopening there before too long by an experienced San Francisco restaurant man. It will continue serving Japanese food.

MEANWHILE, if you just can't wait until then for some Japanese cooking, you might try the new Fujiya Teppan-Steak Restaurant at the corner of Sacramento and Battery Streets, San Francisco, which opened yesterday.

The entire restaurant was designed and handcrafted in Japan, then disassembled, crated and shipped to San Francisco and notched together again without nails. Food consists of traditional Japanese seafood, chicken and beef specialties prepared at the table.

Owner is the Fujiya Co. of Japan, operator of more than 300 restaurants in Japan's eight principal cities. The restaurant is open from 11 a.m. for luncheon Mondays through Fridays and for cocktails and dinners daily.

BURNING OF THE TREES ARRIVES LITTLE EARLY

Someone beat the firemen to it.

Each year the Novato Fire Department collects discarded Christmas trees at its training grounds on Atherton Avenue and Olive Avenue for burning.

This year, the department scheduled the burning for Sunday. But Wednesday night, firemen said, someone beat them to the punch and set the pile of trees on fire.

The blaze, which began about 7 p.m., was quickly extinguished.

DINNER DANCING AT THE CHEZ PIERRE

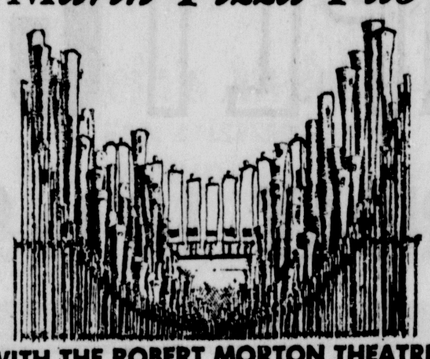

Always sophisticated, romantic and fun. Because the Steve Corley Trio gives dinner-dance music the magic touch — the kind of beat you feel as well as hear. Every evening, Wednesday through Saturday. With dinner at the Chez Pierre. Or with drinks at the lounge. Visit soon. You'll be taking steps in the right direction.

New notes of interest. Fredrico sings along with his own Sweet-n'-Low kind of piano. Every evening, Sunday through Tuesday . . . and Wednesday through the cocktail hour. Drop by. It's 88 keys to a very pleansant evening.

Space Shuttle May Go The Way Of SST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Having grounded the supersonic transport (SST) after a bruising showdown with the administration, Congress may well vote this year to do the same thing to the space shuttle.

President Nixon announced earlier this week that he was giving the go-ahead to the $5.5 billion space project, but the shuttle will never reach orbit unless Congress consents.

Based on the record of the past few years, projects such as the space shuttle, which bears a striking similarity to the SST, will have an exceedingly difficult time getting through Congress.

What Nixon proposed was a smaller, economy model of the billion to $10 billion craft recommended by the space agency.

To be developed over a sixyear period, the space shuttle would rocket a four-man crew into space and glide them back to Earth like an airplane. It could be reused several times.

Although Congress was in recess when Nixon made his announcement, there was no question that a broad coalition of priority-changers and budget-cutters would seek to keep the shuttle from getting off the launching pad.

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., called Nixon's decision "another example of perverse priorities and colossal waste in government spending."

Mondale's comment was significant since he is a key member of the anti-SST bloc and led the fight to eliminate study money for the space shuttle last year.

"Typically, this administration can squander $6.5 billion ($1 billion contingency money) to fly four people into orbit, while it refuses to invest less than one-third that amount to provide desperately needed day and development programs for millions of preschool children," he said.

"As with so many other expensive weapons and gadgets, the construction of the space shuttle has more to do with perpetuation of bureaucratic interests and the politics of government contracting than with the authentic needs of our nation.

"The President may have decided to spend this $6.5 billion, but he still must have the consent of the Congress," Mondale said.

Bennett Elected To State Post

William M. Bennett of Kentfield has been elected vice-chairman of the State Board of Equalization for 1972, and named chairman of the board's personnel committee.

Bennett represents the Third Equalization District.

New chairman of the five-member board is John W. Lynch of Fresno, representing the Second District. He succeeds Richard Nevins of Pasadena.

Bennett, an attorney, was elected to the board in 1970 after service as a former deputy state attorney general, and as chief council, member and president of the California Public Utilities Commission.

Injuries Minor In Bus Accident

MANILA (UPI)—A school bus loaded with 35 children of U.S. Air Force personnel careened off an embankment today and landed on its side near the U.S. Clark Air Base, 50 miles north of Manila.

An Air Force spokesman said two students were hospitalized with noncritical injuries. The other students were treated for cuts and bruises at the base hospital and released.

Okay. Are we a restaurant, or an art gallery, or what. This question often gives our customers the opportunity to make smart remarks like the one above. The answer is that we are whatever you'd like us to be. If you like fine art better than eating, we are a fine art gallery. If, on the other hand, you'd rather eat than look at a lot of silly pictures, we're a fine continental restaurant. It's just a matter of taste. In either case, the taste is good.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Upcoming Elections Deserve Attention

Twenty-seven city council positions in 10 cities in Marin County will be up for election April 11.

Five of the cities also will elect treasurers, and four will elect city clerks.

In several of the cities, one or more of the incumbents whose terms expire have indicated they will not seek re-election. At least one — Anne Ellinwood of Tiburon —is aspiring to higher office, Miss Ellinwood having announced her candidacy for county supervisor.

Belvedere, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Ross and Sausalito each will elect three councilmen. Corte Madera, Fairfax, San Anselmo and Tiburon each will elect two. Treasurers will be elected in Corte Madera, Fairfax, Ross, San Anselmo and Sausalito, and clerks in the same group except for Sausalito, which does not have an elective city clerk. San Rafael holds its municipal elections in the odd-numbered years.

Filing for the positions will open next Thursday and continue through Feb. 5. The campaigns will begin in earnest immediately thereafter.

CITY ELECTIONS give the individual voter his greatest chance to make his vote count, and his best opportunity to use it wisely. None of Marin's cities is so large that the voter faces difficulty in learning about the individuals seeking office, or in meeting and talking with them during the campaign. In most cases, the candidates are quite widely known among residents of their cities in advance.

Unfortunately, city elections do not attract as much attention as they should. Too many people pay little heed to the campaigns until just before voting day. Too many fail to make the small effort necessary to acquaint themselves with the candidates' backgrounds and what each one proposes.

As a corollary, the campaigns themselves sometimes fail to revolve around the issues of genuine concern to most people (as happens often, too, in the campaigns for higher offices). Although each city has current needs and problems, specific proposals for their solution sometimes fail to surface during the city council election drives.

THE REALLY INTERESTED citizen can do several things, besides just casting his vote, to improve local government. He can encourage acquaintances of real ability to seek office. He can scan the campaign promises and ask questions of the candidates — both at large candidate forums and at the smaller neighborhood gatherings which feature such campaigns. He can insist on answers.

The candidate forums offer the best opportunity for wide exposure of what each aspirant proposes and how he would tackle the city's problems. And the better they are attended, the more questions come from the audience and the more thorough is the airing.

We look for sizable candidate fields in all or most of the cities. We hope there will be sufficient candidate forums so that all those interested will have opportunity to attend. And we hope the attendance is big at all of them.

If democratic representative government fails, it will fail first at the local level. That's where the individual vote counts most.

"Allow me to explain the various joys of being the front-runner . . . ."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Letters for "What Our Readers Say" are welcomed. To be published, they must bear the writer's signature and address (only the city will be printed, but street or post office box address must be included.) Try to limit letters to 200 words. The editors reserve the right to cut long letters, or to reject any that may be libelous or in bad taste.

Food Fad Series Motives Suspected

Your recently completed series of articles on "food faddism" struck me as rather obvious propaganda being "dished out" by some of the larger food processors. Would the Harvard University Department of Nutrition by any chance have a large grant from General Foods, or from one of the major producers of breakfast foods, for instance, which flood the consumers' market and add little of nutrition to his diet?

As one who has used "health food" stone ground flour to make delicious home-baked bread, it makes me sorrowful to witness the hoax being manufactured for the American public to consume by food processors and their advertising.

Too bad the almighty dollar is the only thing that counts to them!

Numerous Complaints Regarding House

The article that appeared in the Independent-Journal, Dec. 22, regarding the nice old home at 201 Locust in San Rafael didn't touch the heart of anyone around City Hall. I am reminded of the hours our staff people spent working on the complaints of the neighbors, which in my opinion were justified.

Most of the cars that were coming and going all hours of the day and night were not owned by Mrs. Richards as indicated in your article. A check of the license numbers, through the police department, revealed this.

I hope with the coming of the New Year 201 Locust will take on the appearance of a single family home instead of a commune.

Orr Dinner Designed To Assist Defense

As one of the organizers of the dinner for Police Chief Jim Orr, I would like to comment upon the excellent letter written by Mrs. Jean Mahoney. I have personal knowledge of many of the people who bought tickets for the dinner not necessarily to show their support of Chief Orr, but to help provide him with the means to defend himself.

Judge Wilson recently commented that the dismissal of a police officer is an extremely serious matter that precludes him from getting another job in law enforcement.

The dinner was not a testimonial but simply an effort of concerned citizens to help a man who needs help and who, over the years, has continuously done his utmost to help them when they needed it. As Mrs. Mahoney pointed out, this type of community action obviously would confuse and amaze some people.

Too Many Transfers For College Students

I concur with the letter from Sarah Chapman (Jan. 4) regarding biased reporting on behalf of Golden Gate Transit.

Please do your North Terra Linda and College of Marin students a favor and negotiate a trip to the school from either area between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. You will find that no less than three transfers involving four buses are required to complete the trip one way. On a bright sunny day, not good. On a cold rainy day, horrid! Novato students fare a bit better. They only need transfer once.

Marin Transit System handled the same area with no transfer required.

Intra-county schedules for the Golden Gate Transit were not available at banks nor from the bus drivers until Tuesday. This left commuters who had to be at work and students who had to attend class on Monday guessing and waiting uselessly for buses which did not follow the same route and time as Marin Transit System. According to the I-J, Golden Gate Transit was supposed not only to add and improve service, but to have continued that which had been in operation under Marin Transit System. Commuters to San Francisco who prefer driving to work rather than stand one and a half to two hours for a bus back to Marin no longer find themselves subsidizing Marin Transit System through taxes. Now they subsidize Golden Gate Transit through higher bridge tolls as the reduced rate commuter books are no longer available.

Golden Gate Transit has a lot of good things to be said for it — by people who do not have to ride it to and from work and/or school.

Scientists Abandon Tenets By Countenancing Disruption

WASHINGTON — The officials of the American Association for the Advancement of Science apparently thought they were doing something pretty brave and pretty smart by tolerating the raucous, bullying, jeering, don't-listen-to-him tactics of violent-minded members of its recent sessions in Philadelphia.

They weren't smart and they weren't brave. They were either cowardly or dream-worldish.

They permitted their precious forum to be crassly used — by those who call themselves scientists — to disdain science, to prevent others from listening to views these few didn't want to hear, and to assassinate the First Amendment by driving speakers from the rostrum.

WEBSTER DEFINES scientist as one who practices "scientific investigation."

Was the American Association for the Advancement of Science devoting itself to "scientific investigation" by condoning what they blandly called "demonstrations" but which in reality were tactics designed to deny free speech, to trample on scientific investigation, and to turn scientific discussion into turmoil and noninvestigation?

The officers of the association allowed themselves to believe that if they gave the disrupters enough rope, the disrupters would hang themselves. They didn't. They hung the American Association for the Advancement of Science by abusing it for their purposes. The officials mistakenly thought that if they were kind to the disrupters, the disrupters would be kind to them.

WHEN WILL SCIENTISTS become scientific enough to base their political judgment on experience? When they do, they will realize that the disrupters don't give a damn about the integrity of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, about the kind of scientific investigation which is the first ingredient of science, or about practicing free assembly and free speech for everybody.

The disrupters have always shown that they care only for themselves and that if you give them a piece of rope, they will put a noose around the Bill of Rights.

Officials explained that the association was giving the "demonstrators a means of bringing divergent views before the association."

Is throwing junk paper or other objects at Sen. Hubert Humphrey an appropriate or a useful or a lawful "means of bringing divergent views before the association"? Is this what scientists mean by "scientific investigation"?

WEBSTER DEFINES scientific as "seeking precise knowledge."

Do shouting "murderer" and "liar" at William Bundy, former assistant secretary of state for Asian affairs, and Leslie Gelb, who directed the preparation of the Pentagon Papers, and heckling and hooting them so violently that they couldn't deliver their speeches — do these things represent a search for precise knowledge?

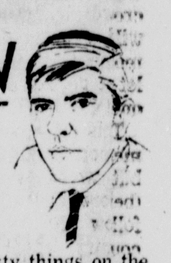

Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who was assistant secretary of labor under Kennedy, and assistant to the President under Nixon, was not amused by this shabby, shoddy, evil exhibition.

"I'm a political scientist," he said in refusing to participate under such conditions. "I smell fascism."

He smells right. Mr. Moynihan is one who shows that "children of light" do not have to be so naive as to be taken in by those who trample on scientific inquiry with fascist feet.

The greater culprit in this sorry exhibition was not the disrupters but the officials of the association who were blindly violating every premise and precept of their profession.

The Once-Exalted Ph. D. Now Cloak For Brattishness

WASHINGTON — Does possession of a doctor of philosophy degree entitle the bearer to public behavior that would cause any ghetto dropout to be pummeled and locked up forthwith?

A certain number of Ph.D.s who have been unable to attract much attention by peacefully pursuing their academic specialities think so — think it is acceptable to try to compensate for lack of professional distinction by carrying out into the adult world the kind of tantrums their students throw on the campus.

Thus, for the third year in a row, the few among us who have to follow the news come holidays or high water are aware that the American Association for the Advancement of Science exists. Although it has 180,000 members, nobody except members and their wives ever knew about it before.

THE AAAS MEETS in Philadelphia between Christmas and New Year's and listens to scholarly exchanges on the scandalous theft of archaeological treasures from the Peruvian jungles and the Turkish deserts, and the ineffectiveness of the enforcement of antinoise ordinaces, and the sad lack of progress in solving the conflict between our energy needs and the pollution they produce, and things like that.

Naturally, nobody pays any attention. Thus, in a masochistic way, the association must be thankful for the fact that some of its members have organized into rump groups which attract notice by the same methods used by infants who say bad words or smear nasty things on the rug. Thanks to them, the AAAS gets publicity far beyond what would be generated by merely passing out advance copies of high-flown speeches.

The rumpsters' first manifestation this season took indecent advantage of a man who has been victimized so many times they should have shown him some sympathy — Hubert Humphrey. Before he got up to talk they had hung signs around the stage accusing him of things like murder, rape, genocide, lying and "pimping for U.S. imperialism." Undaunted as always, he went ahead, at which point a dignitary of the rump group entitled Science for the People hurled a tomato at the senator.

Even on the most discouraging occasions during his vice-presidential years, which included the night they spattered yellow paint on him as he entered the Rome Opera House and the night they bullhorned him down at an auditorium in Seattle, nobody had ever come so close with ripe vegetables before. But as always he pressed onward.

In fact, afterward, he signed a statement handed to him by one of the radical scientists calling for immediate disengagement in Indochina and the usual steps demanded by such petitions. He sliced them up a bit for their behavior, but nevertheless went along with their objective. Which shows, among other things, the lengths to which some people will go in their pursuit of the Presidency.

WHAT THIS DID, unfortunately, was offer the radicals positive reinforcement. The next day Daniel Patrick Moynihan, to his momentary credit, refused to deliver his speech because of Humphrey's treatment. He told the press he smelled fascism in the radical's actions. But he did not discourage them for long. On the same day, a contingent heckled a symposium on police data systems and another squad lay down on the floor during a seminar on the national power crisis. One of the group explained that they were trying to show that power is killing people in Vietnam — and was applauded for this clarification.

That part causes nonmembers of the Ph.D. trade union to wonder if that once-exalted degree has proliferated so widely that it no longer implies any smattering of intellectual perception. What responsibility does electrical power in the United States have for killing in Indochina? None, of course, unless you broaden responsibility so far that it also jusitified demonstrations against all airplanes, all trucks, all sulfur, all charcoal, all saltpeter, all trinitrotoluene. Yet people who purport to be intellectuals applaud such logic.

Taking it yet a step further, the outgoing president of the AAAS plays the patient and understanding father to the brattish rumpsters in his organization. True, he says, the radicals are trying to push the association further into politics than most members would like. But after all, "If there weren't these interruptions, it would mean these meetings are not significant."

This confession comes, I am sad to say, from Athelstan Spilhaus, who in his chosen fields of meteorology and oceanography has earned wide respect. But he is 60 years old, which is old enough to know better than to equate interruption with significance, or to maintain that one contributes to the other. In no scientific discipline embraced by the all-inclusive AAAS could a candidate win a Ph.D. by advancing such a shaky thesis. Unless, of course, the Ph.D. is not what it used to be — which, on the basis of dispatches from Philadelphia, is a fairly firm thesis in itself.

A Message To The Legislators From One Of Their Constituents

SACRAMENTO — A "State of the State" message to the members of the California Legislature:

I could stand here before you and review our common and separate faults and failings. But this would mostly serve to reopen wounds from old and generally non-productive battles. No one benefits, and the people are the losers, in such conflicts.

There is a list of things to be done. There is a list of things to be undone. These are the issues which should occupy our minds and our time.

. Since 1967, we have talked about tax reform, without real results. In the past five years there have been two major tax increases: one for almost $1 billion and one for $500 million. We have placed too great a load on our working men and women, the producers in our society. We gnaw at their vitals.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD depend upon the people. The way we have been going, more and more people are forced to depend on government; this is wrong. We must revise, revamp, reshape and reduce the scope and cost of government.

For years we have talked about doing something about our schools. Now, absolutely we must develop a sensible and equitable method of collecting and distributing tax revenues for education —or many of our schools will go bankrupt. Every taxpayer has the right to know that he is carrying only his fair share. Every child has the right to know that, regardless of where he lives in the state, he has an equal opportunity for an education.

We cannot permit education to dawdle in the past, hindered by expensive barnacles. We should get on with innovations such as the voucher plan, get on with letting the voters elect the State Board of Education and permitting the board to appoint a state superintendent.

Our farm workers, and our small farmers, desperately need sensible labor legislation. Neither the pressures of giant interests nor the threats of labor Cesars should keep us from enacting those laws.

OUR TWO BRANCHES of government, and both parties, should join in an accelerated economic development campaign to bring more jobs to this state. Who gets the credit doesn't matter; it's the number of new jobs created that counts.

There is an immediate need for prison reform, on two fronts: to protect society, and its servants, from the violent and the mad; and to protect the relatively innocent first-offender from the hardened criminal and the youthful inmate from the voraciousness of the sexual deviants within the prison walls.

We need an objective analysis of the environmental and economic impact of the state water plan — not a witch-hunt, an honest calculation of trade-offs and an accurate reckoning of costs and who pays them. The water plan must not be a system whereby a few get subsidized water at the expense of the taxpayers.

WE ARE FAR from attaining the original goals of welfare reform. What was done in 1971 mostly shuffled things within the existing system. There is still much to be done; keeping in mind that cost-accounting is no substitute for compassion, but that the legislator who robs the recipient of personal responsibility also robs the taxpayer of individual earning.

It is essential that we enact those laws needed to protect our citizens from the ravages of crime and violence and narcotics. If we here would show as much guts, and as much smarts, as the police officer on his beat, we would pass those measures needed to protect society and to rehabilitate the addict.

Most of all, we need a new tone to government. The people will not put up with the cantankerous and the fraud. This capitol is no place for partisan pettifoggery.

Defeat Of Bricker Amendment Opened Way For U.S. Troubles

By JOHN S. KNIGHT
In Detroit Free Press

In the years 1953-54, Sen. John W. Bricker of Ohio was the proponent of a constitutional amendment which generally provided that a treaty which was in conflict with the Constitution would have no force or effect; that a treaty would become effective as internal law in the U.S. only through congressional enactment; and that executive agreements with foreign nations should be made only in the manner and to the extent prescribed by law.

The Bicker amendment was hotly debated by the Senate and subsequently defeated 60 to 31; just one vote short of the required two-thirds majority required for a constitutional amendment.

It has been bitterly assailed by the State Department and others who wanted no limitations placed upon the authority of the executive branch of government.

The Bricker amendment would have clarified, as Willard Edwards of the Chicago Tribune points out, the responsibilities of Congress and the President in foreign policy, thus preventing a host of subsequent altercations. "If Congress should now," says Edwards in quoting former Senator Bricker, "pass legislation lifting the UN embargo on chrome ore from Rhodesia, it may be legally arguable that a United Nations commitment overrides the U.S. Constitution."

Furthermore, and this is my observation, Senator Bricker's amendment might have prevented our tragic involvement in Vietnam since constitutional processes — as specified by SEATO — were largely ignored at that time.

Senator Bricker says he has beeen told by several senators, including J. W. Fulbright who opposed the amendment, that they would now vote for it.

And thus the course of history was changed by the negative vote of one befuddled senator who had to be led to the Senate floor.

Holiday Thoughts On Return To Weekly Column Writing

Well, "hello again." Shall we chat? Or perhaps I should say, may I chat with you? Taking December off was the first time in many years that I just deliberately set aside a month with no definite plans. I found myself time after time wondering what I would do next.

First let's get something straight. Someone started the story that I was in a rest home. Tain't so. I live in my own home and there is normally not much time for rest. I can just sneak an hour's snooze now and then. I spent a few days at the hospital having some X-rays taken to see how the old ulcer was doing. It needed a little attention, which it is getting.

I CAUGHT UP ON some of my neglected reading in addition to the daily reading of the I-J. Jack Craemer's "Editor's Notebook" on Christmas Eve was one of the nice things. It was headed: "Handel's Music Brings Meaning of Christmas." Billie sang in and conducted the choir of the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael for several years. I always took her to rehearsals and heard the "Halleluja Chorus" year after year. I always intended to read up on Handel, so the editor's notebook was a fine bonus for me this Christmas.

I hope you were tuned in for the New Year's Eve, on Channel 5, with Guy Lombardo and his great band playing at the Waldorf-Astoria — and the crowds in Times Square going wild with the excitement of the moment. "The old year is gone, let it go. Here is a bright new one!"

This all brought back happy memories. We never went out, but would tune in the radio (before the day of T.V.) and follow the New Year across country. The big bands would be playing in the great ballrooms of the day, like the Fairmont and St. Francis in San Francisco. Announcers would be atop buildings like Hale Brothers at Fifth and Market, bringing us a picture by word of mouth of the huge crowds on Market Street. No matter what problems there were, they were forgotten and we were happy beyond words.

IT LOOKS LIKE a a landmark has been established respecting property rights. The up-tight extremists should take note. We can all be proud of those clear thinking, fair-minded folks out Lucas Valley way.

The homeowners association is in the process of contracting to buy from the owners some acreage west of them so that the environment that was a big factor in their decision to make their home there will not be changed. Bully for them!

Execs Surrender In Rail 'Fraud'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A former top executive and a former financial adviser of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad were freed on bond Thursday after surrendering on charges they conspired to defraud the railroad.

David C. Bevan of Gladwynne, Pa., former chairman of the Penn Central Finance Committee; and Charles J. Hodge, former chairman of the investment company F. I. DuPont, surrendered at City Hall in the company of their attorneys.

They were arraigned later at Common Pleas Court. Bond of $50,000 was set. They were permitted to sign their own bonds, so they did not have to post cash.

A third man charged in the conspiracy, retired Air Force Gen. Olbert F. Lassiter, Beverly Hills, Calif., surrendered Wednesday night in Los Angeles and was arraigned there Thursday.

Sausalito Council Determined Not To Reinstate Zink

If the Sausalito City Council has made one thing clear in the past year, it is that it does not want, under any circumstances, to reinstate Thomas Zink in the Sausalito Police Department.

The 33-year-old police sergeant was fired in May of 1970 and has fought for reinstatement since that time. Zink was also the man who first made public charges that a quota system of arrests exists in the Sausalito department, an accusation which triggered the current grand jury investigation of Sausalito police. So it is easy to see why he is not terribly popular with the city fathers.

The council's decision to fight all the way against returning Zink to the department could well end up costing the city a good deal of money, possibly up to $30,000.

Already the council has spent nearly $8,000 to hire a state hearing officer to hear evidence in the case, pay its own atorney to handle the city's case, and obtain testimony given at the hearings.

(The hearing officer, by the way, recommended that Zink be reinstated but demoted to patrolman, but the council wasn't buying halfway measures and upheld the firing.)

When Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the city to reinstate Zink recently, the policeman's attorney estimated the city owes his client approximately $18,000 in back wages, fringe benefits and interest.

Now the council plans to appeal the judge's decision, a move that could cost up to $1,000 and take up to one year before a decision is forthcoming if its loses the appeal, the city will also have to pay Zink salary for the time it took to appeal the case in the higher courts.

Individual council members, when questioned about the cost of the whole affair, have said they could not go against their own consciences in the matter, even to save money.

BARRING SOME legal miracle, it appears that Frank Werber will go to jail on Monday to begin serving a sixmonth sentence for drug possession.

What will happen to his Trident Restaurant in Sausalito during his enforced absence remains to be seen. But several Sausalitans who watch these kinds of things have noticed Werber in the comapny of San Francisco nightclub entrepreneur Enrico Banducci. They are wondering if Banducci may play some part in the Trident operation.

ON MARCH 7 Sausalito School District voters will go to the polls to decide whether to extend the district's general purpose tax rate of $2.20 for another two years or let the rate drop to 90 cents.

Since residents have until Jan. 13 to register to vote in that election, campaigns to get the eligibles to register are under way in full force.

Apparently the district feels it will have a better chance to pass the tax proposal if more people vote. It might work the opposite way.

BYRON D. WHITE

ROBERT P. SIMMONS
Seeking reelection

HERBER C. LENNEY
Fire department issue

Fire Protection Will Spark Corte Madera's Council Races

A dispute over fire protection in the town is expected to spark a heated campaign for two seats on the Corte Madera Town Council to be filled April 11.

Councilmen Robert P. Simmons and Byron D. White both told the Independent-Journal they will seek a second four-year term, while Herber C. Leney, a near-winner in the 1970 council election, announced yesterday he will seek to unseat them.

Leney, 64, president of the Mariner Cove Improvement Association, said the fire problem will be the key issue in the campaign. His and other east Corte Madera homeowners' groups have been asking the council to hire more full-time firemen since a mid-day blaze destroyed two homes and damaged a third in east Corte Madera four months ago.

Leney said he wants two firemen on duty at all times at both town fire stations.

The council has delayed action until a citizens' committee, armed with a controversial consultants' report, makes its recommendations.

White, while acknowledging more firemen are needed — noted the full-time force had been beefed up from one to five men by the present council. He said more would have been added if flooding woes had not siphoned off funds.

The fire report by engineer Bill S. Ingram and Fire Chief Bryce W. Connick, both of Watsonville, said the fire department is undermanned, poorly equipped and insufficiently trained. The pair recommended an expensive improvement plan.

The town council authorized the $4,000 study.

Leney, a retired attorney and Army lieutenant colonel, lost by four votes to Holmes S. Norville, now mayor, in 1970, his initial try for a council seat. He is vice chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, chairman of the Corte Madera Sanitary Commission and is a member of the eight-man citizen subcommittee studying the fire problem. He also has been active with civic and church groups.

A 12-year resident of Corte Madera, Leney and his wife live at 318 Golden Hind Passage. They have four children.

White, 68, is a retired executive of Fibreboard Corp. of San Francisco. He was the top vote getter among three candidates in the 1968 election.

He is a former planning commissioner and member of the board of adjustments and a charter member of the Mariner Cove Improvement Association. He and his wife, Thelma, have lived at 24 Staghound Passage since 1959. They have a son, Donald.

Simmons, 37, is a certified public accountant with his office in Corte Madera. He was appointed to the council in January 1968, then elected three months later.

He is a former member of the Corte Madera Christmas Tree Hill Dwellers' Association. He and his wife live at 1 Balclutha Drive with his wife, Gaille. The couple has a daughter, Stephanie.

Town councilmen are paid $150 a month, but the other two positions on the ballot pay only $2 a year. They are town clerk, a position held by Betty S. Behel, and town treasurer. Frank Bigley holds that job.

Both also have indicated they will run again.

Reed Panel Picks New Committees

Trustees of the Reed School District have completed organization of five citizen committees to study such items as facilities and instruction in the district.

Members of two of the groups, the small schools fact-finding committee and the recreation and community services committee, were appointed by the board Tuesday, Supt. Ralph K. Giovanniello said.

Named to the small school group, which will study the Belvedere and Tiburon schools, were Robert Imel, chairman; Susan Bernheim, Sherril Brooks, Charles Denton, Patricia L. Furlong, Christopher Layton, Marie Parodi, Shirley Silvestri, Joan Bassett and Fred Hannahs.

Giovanniello said the group will study the economic feasibility of maintaining the two small schools and the effects of population growth upon them.

Members of the recreation committee, which will look into the possibility of a joint summer recreation program sponsored by the district and the city of Tiburon, among other things, include Roger Felton, Don Loomis, Don Tayer, Joseph Franaszek and Mrs. Charles Holmes.

The superintendent said the five committees, which the board has sought to set up for three months, will make recommendations to the board.

Other citizen committees deal with finance, school facilities committee (formerly called the sixth, seventh and eight grade fact-finding committee) and research and instructional assessment.

The Reed School District board also:

SURVEY — On a proposal by trustee Kenneth G. Wells, suggested that the administration survey the community served by Granada School to find out how parents feel about the school.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignations of teacher aide Georgia Munsell and library clerk Joanne Peltz.

EMPLOYMENT — Voted to hire Sharon Castell as a teacher aide.

TRANSFER — Granted a transfer to the Larkspur School District to a first grade student after meeting in closed session to discuss the transfer request.

INSURANCE — Approved a resolution which would include trustees in the district's workmen's compensation insurance coverage.

Patchwork Her Own Special Therapy

A Lot Of Special Requests

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

"My own special therapy" is the way therapist-teacher Janet Daijogo describes her elegant patchwork clothes.

At her home on Mount Tamalpais above Mill Valley, the young American-born Japanese discussed her extraordinary avocation while her doll-like daughter Maki, 5, frolicked on her lap.

For five years Janet has been a therapist-teacher of 5 to 7-year-old children with emotional or perceptual problems at the Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon, but she spends many hours at home making — by special request — various kinds of apparel, such as skirts, dresses and men's shirts.

All are created from patches of cotton materials in many colors and printed patterns.

"IT ALL started seven years ago when my husband gave me a sewing machine after our first daughter, Tane, was born," she recalled. "He said, 'This is something you can do at home to fill all those hours.'

"I had only a few lessons on how to run the machine. I began to sew more and more and gradually got better and better, and the drawers got full of scraps.

"Then the Scot in my blood came out, I suppose, and I began making baby quilts for friends."

Soon Janet had become so proficient that she said she began making skirts and men's shirts, finally going on to vest-coats and long formal gowns.

She has just completed what she considers her greatest challenge — a wedding gown and three bridesmaids' dresses.

"I WAS very much touched," Janet said proudly, "that someone would have that much trust in my work. The wedding gown is white velveteen with patches of elegant Swiss embossed cotton in various shades of white.

"The bridesmaids' gowns are also velveteen with patches," she said, "but they are in bold non-traditional colors. All except the wedding gown may be worn for other occasions.

"It has become a sort of artistic thing with me now," she said, "like the creation of a collage instead of putting patches together. It's a medium to work out my artistic self."

She says her husband, Masami Daijogo, an illustrator with Landphere Associates, has encouraged her and been helpful with the design aspects of her work.

Janet and her sister, Sharon Muneno, often work together. When they found they had too many skirts to dispose of to friends, Sharon gave some to shops on consignment, and a few of their things are now being sold.

"WE WORKED from what we have done for ourselves, adapting basic patterns with good lines," she said, adding that they use cottons exclusively because "they kind of sparkle, and by the time you start seaming, wool gets too heavy."

Elaborately simple, with emphasis on workmanship — this is what Janet said is the key phrase for her clothes.

"I've got this thing about everything being so poorly made today from cars to clothing that I make almost all our clothes now," she said.

Janet tells an incident illustrating the perfection of her workmanship. She saw a woman walking down the street wearing one of her skirts wrong side out. She could not resist pointing this out to the woman. That was the way her customer preferred to wear it, she was told.

The petite teacher-seamstress says she believes her contact with craftsmen in Japan started her own search for perfection.

Born in San Francisco, Janet went to Japan with her family after they were released from internment during World War II. Her father was a civilian employee of the U.S. Army, and she says she received "a standard Army education through grade school and high school" while they were living for seven years on an Army base in Tokyo.

Janet returned to this country to attend the University of California, where she was graduated in 1959 and received teaching credentials the following year. She met her designer-illustrator husband at the university.

SEVERAL YEARS of teaching in various places, including San Diego, San Francisco and South San Francisco, followed before they decided to spend a year in Tokyo. There Janet taught part-time in a kindergarten while her husband was employed as a designer in a studio.

Despite the total time spent in the land of her ancestors, Janet remembers that she found living there difficult.

"You look Japanese, but you aren't," she said. "Cultrually you are American."

On returning to the U.S., Janet and her family spent some time in San Diego, then moved to the Bay Area, where they lived in Strawberry until they built their present home three years ago.

Janet says that her sewing avocation has affected many facets of her life. She confesses she is irritated when people ask, "How can you be a mother, wife and teacher and still have time for sewing?"

"My friends have even accused me of being competitive and having to outdo other people," she said, "but it's just something I need to do for myself. It's my means of self-expression. I refuse to stay at home and be miserable. There's no reason why, if you have the energy, you can't do many things."

Children are better off with mothers who have their own individual interests, she believes.

She is in favor of the women's liberation movement. "It's ridiculous to think a human being can't fulfill herself to the fullest extent," she said.

MRS. THOMAS F. KOSTIC of Mill Valley, a friend and neighbor of Janet Daijogo, models a hostess ensemble Janet made for her. The elegant patchwork skirt is seemingly a kaleidoscope of colors, but it is carefully color-coordinated around mauve, pink and violet.

(I-J photos by Bob Hax)

JANET DAIJOGO, wearing a patchwork vest-coat, has taught her daughters, 7-year-old Tane and 5-year-old Maki, to sew well. Maki shows her skill with needle and thread while her mother sews a button on a patchwork skirt — a task she often lets the girls handle. "They're better at it than I," she said. "I would rather make a whole shirt." A shirt hangs in the background.

New Fashion: The Orient's Crowning Glory

She's Either Sending Or Receiving

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new dynasty headdress crowns the Orient's influence on spring fashion. It's really —"something else."

Introduced at the 58th annual Press Week of the New York Couture Business Council, the headdress makes the wearer look as though she's either sending or receiving electronic signals.

The main feature of this adornment for the cranium, you see, is two brass items that standup like the rabbit ears on a television set.

BY AWARD-WINNING jewelry designer Stanley Hagler, the headdress also had multicolor braidings and trappings of black lacquered bamboo. Completing it as Hagler's concept of the perfect Manchurian cadidate, was the style of the Venicelon fiber wig fixed by Anthony Antoniou to frame the face and follow the line of the headdress, making a kind of cozy nest for it.

Hagler, an attorney from Denver who came East some years ago to get into designing, holds dozens of jewelry-making awards, including international ones.

For another oriental look, there was a Dragon Lady pendant—an oversized Chinese character that fills most of the space between neck, shoulders and the top part of an evening gown without straps.

To go with this, Hagler designed lantern earrings big as a lemon and made of flaming red crystals and rhinestones.

The innovative designer's collection included many hair ornaments, necklaces and earrings of carved jades, cornelians, corals and jet earrings in gleaming brass and Chinese enamels.

HIS PEKING coolie hat made of bamboo and edged in gilt is meant for wearing with "floor length" braids. That's right—braids that reach to the shoe tops. They'll be making the spring fashion scene because they're as Oriental as chop sticks.

To enable one to adopt this style, among new wigs, introduced was one in jet black for the full-length pig tails, Yin and Yang.

There also was a wig styled in the Chinaman's queue to coordinate with what is shaping up as the fashion winner of the year, the Chinese worker's suit.

Among other new "jewelry" shown to fashion reporters was a denim braceget —made of what's left when those faded jeans shred.

The bracelets were made from "recycled" jeans.

Satisfaction—Through Management Of Food

"A good food manager gets satisfaction out of knowing he or she is managing money well, as well as food," said Helen M. Lysell, departmental food administrator for the California Department of Youth Authority.

Miss Lysell, a registered dietitian, became interested in the field when she was assigned to run an officers' mess while serving in the Navy.

Of her present job she explained, "I worked on the design of kitchens when construction of our institutions was going on. I maintain equipment lists and work with the institutions to maintain standards to be sure that youths we are taking care of have adequate nutrition. We practically raise some youths."

MISS LYSELL visits all the CYA institutions at least twice a year in her job as an administrative dietitian, and keeping up with new methods in the field keeps piles of industry magazines on her desk.

Annual workshops for food management, in which many food professionals participate, have proved beneficial for the food staffs of the youth authority's 11 institutions.

In addition, local workshops provide frequent training in special areas. For example, last spring a baker's workshop was held at one institution.

Feeding more than 5,000 youngsters in 11 institutions and four forestry camps requires quite a menu — and budget balancing.

"THE OFFICE of Procurement in the Department of General Services does the buying, we do the ordering," explained Miss Lysell.

"Eighty per cent of our buying is done on a contract basis, which can be pretty complex. Some people find it hard to learn to order this way. We have to read the contracts to see if we meet the minimum requirements to buy that way."

A disadvantage of being an administrative rather than "in the kitchen" dietitian is "getting feedback on work done. Preparing meals in an institution you have an opportunity three times a day to have a success. As an administrator the chances are few and far between," she said.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Her Husband Often Is Drunk, Beats Her And Their Child

DEAR HELEN:

I have been married for three years and have an 18-month old daughter. The problem centers around my husband who gets very drunk several times a week. On these occasions he slaps me around, as he does even at times when he hasn't been drinking. He has a vile temper and the language he uses is foul, to say the least.

But I could stand all this if he was decent to the baby. He never pays any attention to her except to scream at her and, when she cries, he hits her. Then, on the few occasions when we go visiting or our relatives come to see us, he expects her to act like a sweet, loving daughter. When she won't go to him and screams if he picks her up, he waits till we're alone, then beats her for it. If I try to stop him, we both get bruises. She was in the hospital once. I couldn't bear to let anyone know my husband had hurt her, so we said that she fell out of her crib.

Our religion doesn't allow for divorce. What can I do? — AFRAID

DEAR AFRAID:

The situation which you and your child are facing, in relation to your husband's drunken, savage temper, is so dangerous that I think it imperative that you have specialist guidance in finding a solution.

Even the strictest religion would not force you to live with a man who endangers your child's life. Divorce may be prohibited, but there is no law that says you must remain together.

I think the first step you should take out of this dilemma is to have a talk with your pastor. Put all the facts on the table and I'm sure that he can put you in touch with suitable advisers — in the psychiatric, medical or family case work fields of service.

Your husband is a sick man. And, if you decide to live apart from him, make your departure as peaceable as possible — on terms to which he could adjust without feeling bested —to avoid irrational fury, which could endanger yourself and your child. Here again, your pastor may be of help. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Is there any way we can get a law passed to make people who let their animals roam have them neutered? I help out at the animal shelter. Sometimes three or four hundred cats are brought in during a week. They range all the way from baby kittens to pregnant females, and we can't find homes for most of them, so they must be destroyed. How much better it would be if people who didn't want to raise animals saw to it their animals wouldn't add to the overpopulation.

The excuse is usually that having a pet "fixed" costs too much.

What can be done? — ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR A.L.:

I understand that several cities have helped solve the problem with an "animal birth control clinic" where pets are neutered either free of charge or for a minimum fee. Officials figure cost of the clinics is offset by reduced cost of operating pounds. Why don't you suggest it to your city council? — H.

ON BEING BLACK

The Homeless Black Child — A Problem

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

"It's simply a perpetuation of this decadent society — whites have the power. They get what they want when they want it. Today, black is exotic, unusual and acceptable. So this year they have elected to amuse themselves by taking our children as curiosities and exotic possessions."

"Would the reverse happen? Under any circumstances would they place a white child in a black home? No way."

"Well, it may be a situation where a white home is better than no home at all, but I think it's a dirty, rotten trick to play on a black child."

"What's patently obvious is that white couples are taking black children because thare are no available white children. The black kids are the leftovers, the dregs. It's a matter of a black child being better than no child at all."

"Transracial adoption disturbs me because I know of black families — single adults and older couples —who would love to adopt black children. Families who would provide loving, black homes. But most of these people do not qualify (financially) as 'fit' parents."

"Naturally, by this society's standards, there are many more financially fit white families than black. Whites have had unlimited access to the best jobs and so on. So they now own the big house in the suburbs with the extra bedroom — a new baby needs room to grow. Not so for many black families, who live in housing projects or small one or two-bedroom cottages."

The above quotes are comments made by blacks at a recent Adoption for Black Children seminar.

HOMELESS CHILDREN have long been a problem, but homeless black children have been a particularly crucial problem. For years, black youngsters have been the "adoptive rejects." Concurrent with this situation, few black families have had the financial wherewithal to qualify as legal adoptive parents.

This is certainly not to say that blacks have not been concerned about homeless black children. They have always cared for their own, but not in the form of legal adoption. "Pretend" mothers and "pretend" grandmothers are an intrinsic part of the black society. This care and love continues to be given on a nonlegal basis.

Spokesmen in the field of adoption see transracial adoption as a viable solution for homeless black children. Those in favor of it see a white home as being "as good as" a black home — not "better than" no home at all.

Those against transracial adoption —those really involved —have hit the streets to recruit adoptive black families for black children.

There are now a few all-black adoption agencies who place black children in black homes. Popping up across the country in increasing numbers are a variety of black organizations — concerned black adults — who are encouraging, counseling and assisting black families in the adoption of black youngsters.

THERE IS an organization called Black Families for Adoption, which works in conjunction with the county adoption agency.

Black families who are interested in adopting children should contact their local county adoption agency and inform themselves about the "changes" that have taken place in the adoption arena. they should acquaint themselves with "single parent" adoptions and the various financial subsidies available in certain instances.

And to those blacks who are so patently against transracial adoption — those who feel they would make excellent parents and could offer so much in the name of blackness: Make it on down to the local county adoption agency today.

Our children await us.

HUSBANDS RETIRE EARLIER

Cooking Those Noontime 'Burgers

By VIRGINIA PAYETTE
(United Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Middle-aged wives who flaunt their membership in the "for better or worse, but not for lunch" club may wind up cooking noontime hamburgers long before they're ready to have the old man around the house all day.

The stark economic fact is that more and more men are grabbing early retirement. And "early" doesn't always mean 62, or even 60. In some cases it is 55.

While this may send the woman of the house into a panicky spin, for most men it opens up an unexpected chance to put their daydreams to work. Especially if they're lucky enough to be under a generous pension plan.

Many of them are. Some plans are more liberal than others, but out of 34 million workers covered by a total of $150 billion in private pension funds, at least 10 per cent are now retiring the first chance they get.

AND IF that chance comes in their middle 50s, they still have time to "daylight" another career. With that pension check rolling in every month, they're even willing to settle for less pay.

They can afford to. Because the average private retirement plan pays out 1 per cent of salary for each year worked. So, if after 30 years a man is making, say, $20,000, he can retire on $6,000 or $7,000 a year, with Social Security still to come.

This won't put him in the affluent society, exactly, but it will let him escape from the rat race into something he thinks might be more challenging. The experts call this "occupational renewal."

Or, if he's closer to 60, he can really retire and work on getting his golf score closer to his age. Or take up painting . . . or girl watching . . . or reorganizing mother's cupboards.

Whatever he chooses, the trend is toward early retirement with liberal benefits. And don't think it's all pure kindness on the part of management, either. Sometimes, even though it means paying pensions over a longer period, the company even saves money.

For one thing, it's a most effective way to weed out workers who aren't carrying their weight. On the executive level it gets rid of the deadwood to make room for younger men with more than retirement on their minds.

ALSO, EARLY retirement is a gentle way of easing out workers who have been replaced by computers and other space-age improvements. And, since their pension checks are considerably less than their salaries, the company has that much more to spend on additional computers.

During last year's depression employers circumvented out-and-out firing by offering veteran employes early retirement — or else. Their jobs were then filled by younger men, who didn't cost the firm so much. This helped weather the hard times.

There are even some business prophets who predict that within 10 years private industry will be offering retirement after 20 years at half-pay, even as a lot of public-payroll pension plans already do.

'SINGLE AGAIN' SERIES OPENS

When Marriage Relationship Begins

By JOAN LISETOR

When a woman looks across the breakfast table and asks, "What happened to Prince Charming? How did this fraud, this bum, get here?" and the man asks, "What happened to the princess, the one who was going to give warmth and understanding?" — that is when a relationship has a chance of beginning.

At least that's what Tom Trent, professor of psychology at the College of Alameda, believes.

Speaking before a predominately female audience at the Marin Jewish Community Center last night, Trent gave the opening lecture in the center's 10-part "You Are Single Again" series.

Trent answered the question that was the topic of this lecture, "Is Marriage Really Necessary?" by drawing an analogy to a lawn.

"Is a lawn really necessary?" he asked.

If it is useful, yes, it is necessary. But is its purpose to impress the neighbors? he asked.

"If a marriage enhances life and alleviates loneliness, it is worth the sacrifices," he said, "but so often we are in it before we know where we are."

He listed the most frequent reasons for marrying — to leave home, security, outside pressures — all bad.

"We build up images and then look around for someone who fits them," he said. "When you find someone who fits the image and you fit the person's image the projection is reciprocated, and you're in trouble. If the image is perpetuated long enough you get married to the image, and then one day you realize that person isn't the person you thought and you are not the person which that person thought you were . . ."

Each begins to think the other has broken contract violations, Trent said, and that is when the hassles begin.

"To be intimate is to be vulnerable," he said, "that is why we so often use defenses against it."

We cannot acquire psychic intimacies through physical intimacy, he said, citing the example of a woman who said she went to bed with a man because she did not feel intimate enough with him to say "no."

"Marriage should not be an end but rather a means to an end, a creative relationship," said Trent, who also has a marriage counseling practice in Berkeley. "If marriage is restrictive and makes you defensive it's a bummer, and you are much better off single again."

WHEN A relationship forces a person into a shell, Trent calls it "treadmill suffering."

"Hollywood would have you believe you have two choices — to be happy or to suffer. That's not true. The choices are to suffer or to suffer," he said with a smile.

Trent offered an 11th Commandment, "Thou shalt not rock the boat." Your friends hate you if you break the commandment because it reminds them they do not, he said.

Trent compared a sailor with a boat caught in a storm to a person in a relationship. The sailor must accpet the storm, he said.

"But consider the person who goes out to sea once, runs into a storm and immediately puts in to port and never ventures out again. Is this a person you would want to relate to in more depth?" he asked.

On the other hand, he said, there are those to whom life is one big shipwreck, and they never let you forget it.

THERE ARE two ways to handle suffering, according to Trent: block it off or regurgitate it immediately. He recommended the latter.

Problems of our culture, which affect the newly divorced, separated or widowed person, are the lack of ways to meet people and the little emphasis put on how to communicate feelings, said Trent, who believes too much time is spent on solving problems and not enough on communicating them.

"When you deal with one another as individuals is when you listen to one another," he said.

Because there are creative alternatives today, Trent said, he believes there are more happy people now than there were in the "good old days."

The series continues next Thursday evening at 8 p.m. at the Marin Jewish Community Center. Speaker will be Mel krantzler, career and family counselor and co-leader of the Ross Psychiatric Center.

Counting Cocoa

NEW YORK (UPI) —The Aztec Indians, first people known to have consumed chocolate as a food, also used it as a counting unit, the Chocolate Information Council reports.

Other Ingredients Enhance Rice Flavor

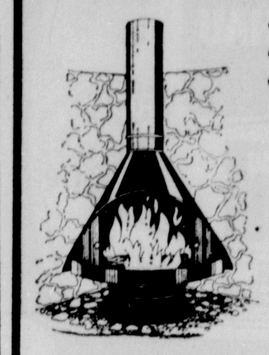

Beef or chicken bouillon can be substituted for water when cooking rice. Other ingredients, which can be added to rice to enhance the flavor, are crumbled bacon, cheddar cheese, sour cream and chives, chopped ripe olives, sauteed onions, mushrooms and toasted sliced almonds.

Seasoned salt, dry salad dressing mix and curry powder also add flavor to rice, and for a tasty breakfast idea add cream, sugar and fruit to hot or cold cooked rice.

Looking Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) —The design and manufacture of a Christmas card takes as long as two years, according to one card maker. The process involves about 300 steps. The firm's artists began work on this season's cards during the summer of 1967. Right now they're working on yule cards for 1975.

Relics Of American Artists Housed In Special Archives

By RODERICK NORDELL

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Consider the fortunes of the artist in America. In 1954 Franz Kline had to pawn a pair of binoculars for $15. Within five years his characteristic paintings, those explosions of black and white, were bringing in enough to make him a two-car man.

Now the Kline canvases are honored in museums. The pawn ticket is in the Archives of American Art — recalling the man behind the easel through one of the five million items that will be increased and made more easily accessible under the past year's branching out by this largest collection of its kind.

Recently archivist Garnett McCoy, wearing chinos and a striped shirt, led a visitor past shopping bags of documents waiting to be filed in the archives' balcony area overlooking the library of the National Collection of Fine Arts (NCFA) here. To sample the materials on hand was to feel the living presences involved in the rocky, spectacular course of American art since the days when John Smibert, whom Mr. McCoy called America's first professional artist, expressed a tentative hope:

"If the arts are about to leave Great Britain I wish they may take their flight into our New World."

This was written to Smibert's London agent in 1743, when the artist was particularly concerned about simply getting sufficient supplies to carry on his work in the colonies.

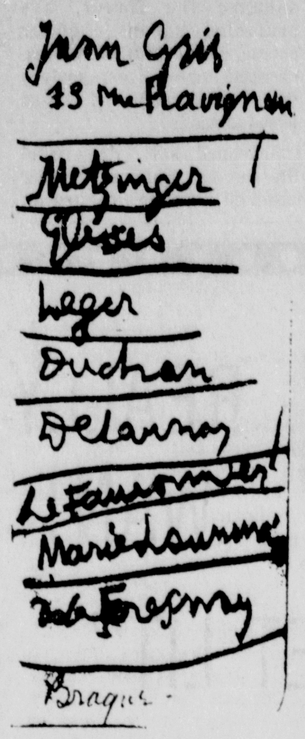

By 1948 the great John Marin expressed other concerns, as in a letter on the archives' wall in script as delightfully cranky as its contents — to do with seeing the sea he so often painted:

"Its breaking over a Sunken ledge out there — ordinarily one is not aware of — what does one see — one gets glimpses a repetition of glimpses — and that — I would say is a multiple that we — Critters — call Seeing — which has — I will say — nothing to do with — Mr. Camera — The nerve of them with their Mr. Cameras Well — Maybe — the nerve of me with my paint pots . . ."

Mr. Camera causes no failure of nerve on the part of the Archives of American Art. The archives not only collects photographs of artists, studios, etc., but makes extensive use of microfilm so that, if the inquirer cannot come to the mountain of research materials, the mountain can go to him. Everything from sculptor David Smith's cosmic thoughts in his notebook to a much-autographed menu for the Armory Show of 1913 to Picasso's handwritten list of suggested artists for that show.

The past year's developments are in line with the archives' original goal to collect "not for the sake of collecting but to use the information and put it to work." These are the words of art historian E.P. Richardson who, with Detroit collector Lawrence A. Fleischman, founded the archives in Detroit in 1954.

In 1971 the archives opened a Boston branch for collecting at the paintings by Lee Gatch, their style changing with time, and then to examine the archives display — photos of the artist in early and later years, his account book, views of his house and studio.

The archives has been under this roof since 1970, McCoy said, when it became affiliated with the Smithsonian Institution. The original materials are here, with microfilm available in Detroit, at executive headquarters in New York, and now Boston.

The tape recording of interviews with artists proceeds together with such projects as keeping a filmed record of art-auction catalogs. Along with Smithsonian support, private fund-raising continues, notably by means of "airlift" art tours abroad.

The whole operation has come a long way since founder Richardson ran into the difficulty of getting to the necessary sources for his book, "Painting in America: The Story of 450 Years." The archives was set up to gather microfilms as a step toward a centralized research facility.

Soon original materials themselves began to be offered, McCoy said. Now the archives, through its branches, through the mails, and through interlibrary arrangements, serves an international spectrum of scholars. Its shelves are beginning to grow with books drawn by authors from its own resources.

FAMILY

"Lady and the Tramp" —A dainty cocker spaniel and a mongrel Knight-errant of the alleyway brings humor, adventure and romance to the little lady dog. Reissue of a Disney treat.

"LeMans" — Technically excellent record of eight and one-half mile course in France with 45 renowned race drivers at the wheels. Exceptional for racing fans.

"Star Spangled Girl" — A trite comedy about a girl who meets two young men who publish an underground newspaper. One falls madly in love with her and his efforts to show his love leads from one disaster to another. Slapstick.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Gone With the Wind" — A classic, a pictorial history of the Civil War and of a civilization "gone with the wind."

"Something Big" — A lightweight western. Two men on the eve of retirement attempt to do "something big." Tale mixes satire, comedy and some action. Sex jokes are not always in good taste.

"Sometimes a Great Notion" — Magnificent scenery and the excitement of dangerous logging operations in the timber wilderness of Oregon make this film a tense dramatic adventure. Independent loggers defy the union which is out on strike. Violent acts and crude language.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Diamonds are Forever" — Lavish production with all the sex, violence and gimmickery that made all the James Bond films a success.

"Dirty Harry" — A determined homicide inspector's search for a psychotic sniper who plans to extort $100,000 from the city of San Francisco or he will kill a person a day. High in terror and suspense.

"French Connection" — An excruciatingly exciting and terrifying suspense thriller about two relentless narcotics detectives trying to crack an international heroin smuggling ring. Much violence.

"The Go-Between" — A turn of the century English love story between a high born girl and a tenant farmer as seen through the eyes of a 12-year-old boy who serves as their messenger boy. Beautifully photographed but one very explicit sex scene.

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing and touching story about what happens to friends and family of two young people who decide to marry. Some nudity.

"Mad Dog and Englishmen" — Filmed record of the American tour of the British rock star, Joe Crocker. The group is a strange but talented people unfortunately they appear to be a sick, drugged group of noise making hippies. Cursing and nudity.

ADULTS ONLY

"The Body" — The avowed purpose of this British documentary is supposed to be about the functioning of the human body from birth to death. New camera techniques make possible the viewing of body systems and internal organs. Very, very explicit, clinical, with a natural childbirth scene that is painful to watch.

"Carnal Knowledge" — The sex lives of two men from college days to middle life done in a two dimensional cynical, satirical style which becomes tiresome. Language and sex are explicit.

"Ginger" — A girl private eye with a yen for sadistic revenge. Her methods range from castration to murder in a New Jersey seaside resort town.

"Shaft" — A tough black detective operating out of Harlem constantly outwits the white police and the Mafia. In addition to racial theme there is quantities of profanity, explicit sex and violence.

Alioto Lays Brick For Market Street

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A brick was laid Thursday by Mayor Joseph Alioto during ceremonies marking the beginning of construction work to beautify Market Street.

Alioto put the ceremonial brick in place in what will become Andrew S. Hallidie Plaza. Hallidie is the man credited with inventing the cable car in 1873.

The plaza is located at Market and Powell streets and is to include entrances for the new Bay Area Rapid Transit system.

Alioto said the first beautification contract calls for work between Fifth and Seventh streets.

The Oakland firm of McGuire and Hester will begin work Monday on the project.

LAGOON LOCK — If Bel Marin Keys Community Services District voters approve a $700,000 bond measure Tuesday, a lock would be built at the entrance to the Bel Marin Keys lagoon, as depicted in the sketch, extdnding from the end of Montego Key to Calypso Shores. The project would reduce siltation in the lagoon.

Bel Marin Lagoon Lock At Stake

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District will conduct a $700,000 bond election Tuesday to finance a tidal lock to reduce silting of the community's lagoon.

In Bel Marin Keys, where activities are centered about the water, preservation of the lagoon is considered vital to its way of life.

With dredging costs mounting, directors decided to seek voter approval of funds to construct a lock, designed to improve navigation and reduce dredging and silting.

Voting will be at the Bel Marin Keys Community Center from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and a two-thirds vote is needed for passage.

The 25-year bonds could be financed without raising the current tax rate of $3 per $100 assessed valuation, according to James L. Zoeller, board chairman.

Bond repayment, river (Novato Creek) and lagoon remedial dredging and operation of the district can be accomplished within the present tax rate, Zoeller said.

The district has been accumulating dredging funds at the rate of $80,000 per year, but once the lock is built that much money won't be needed for dredging, he explained.

"The money we are now accumulating in our dredging fund can be used to pay off the bond, principal and interest, for the next 25 years," he said.

No written argument or organized protest has been made against the measure.

The sooner the lock is built, the sooner the rate of siltation will be reduced and the annual lagoon expense minimized, Zoeller said.

If the lock is constructed, it will be only the second navigational lock in the state, he said. The other is in the Sacramento deep water channel, he reported.

Zoeller cited current navigation problems at low tide, and said the lock will hold in the nigh tide.

The proposed lock across the lagoon entrance at the end of Montego Key and Calypso shores would be approximately 33 feet wide and 60 feet long.

Still to be determined is whether the lock will be operated by the boat owner or by a part-time operator on a predetermined schedule.

Aerial survey has indicated that 117,000 cubic yards of silt are deposited in the lagoon annually and it would cost about $105,000 annually to take care of the problem without the lock, Zoeller said.

"This is more than the $80,000 currently accumulated for the dredging fund," Zoeller said. He said John A. Blume and Associates of San Francisco, consulting engineers, have estimated that once the lock is in and the lagoon dredged, a major dredging job will not be necessary for 20 years.

The cost of the lock has been estimated at $450,000 to $600,000 but the district, seeking $700,000, will only sell the bonds as funds are needed, Zoeller declared.

Even with the lock, the district will have to dredge the lower Novato Creek bayward of the lagoon, estimated to cost $40,000 a year.

Nearly $200,000 already has been accumulated in the dredging fund, Zoeller said.

If the bond measure is defeated, the district will face the necessity of finding a larger disposal site and undertaking a $170,000 project to dredge the lagoon, creek and the bar at the entrance, Zoeller sid.

Lagunitas Hopefuls Air Views On The Three Rs

By GEORGE NEVIN

Two candidates for a vacancy on the Lagunitas School District board, one a proponent of traditional approaches to education and the other an advocate of letting children learn what and when they want, faced each other last night at a candidates night at Lagunitas School.

Donald B. Lethbridge, 32, treasurer-controller of a Tiburon electronics firm, and Richard C. Sloan, 35, a carpenter, are running for the unexpired two years of the term of resigned trustee Eugene DiBasilio in Tuesday's special election.

About 75 persons attended the meeting and asked questions of the two candidates after each gave 10-minute outlines of their views.

As at a candidates night last April, in which Sloan and three others were vying for two board seats, the carpenter's views on saluting the U.S. flag became an issue briefly.

At last year's meeting, a two-minute episode of shouting and namecalling erupted at one point when a member of the audience demanded to know how Sloan felt about saluting the flag and what he did salute. Other members of the audience shouted at him to be quiet.

Betty Gardner of Woodacre asked Sloan why he didn't salute the flag, and Sloan replied: "I love this country, but the flag today means a lot of things I don't want it to mean. When it means justice for the blacks and the brown and us all, then I'll salute it proudly."

Jean A. Bevans of Forest Knolls then stood up and announced, "If this man refuses to take an oath of allegiance to this country, I don't think he should be allowed to be a trustee."

Sloan became angry briefly, and said he was "getting tired of people questioning my loyalty. When I say I'm for democracy, you should check the things I do. I work very hard for democracy."

Except for this brief outburst, however, the meeting was calm and dealt mainly with the educational views of Lethbridge and Sloan.

Lethbridge, who has four children in district schools, stressed the importance of goals in the district "in order to come up with programs that meet the community's needs and objectives."

He said he does not have a philosophy of education, "but I am concerned with one thing — performance. In business, that's all that counts."

He said programs, once decided upon, should be allowed to continue through a complete cycle to see "where they take us."

(In response to a question, Lethbridge later explained one example of not letting a program go through a complete cycle was the building of a modular type of school at San Geronimo Valley School, then discovering that no teacher wanted to teach there, and finally building partitions to separate the school's "pods.")

Everything, said Lethbridge, "hinges on the teachers. A superior teacher can make almost any program succeed. The most important thing is that they care about the children."

He said he favors extension of a special 90-cent tax on the ballot Tuesday, "but not necessarily the levy of the entire 90 cents by the board."

Sloan also endorsed the tax election, and agreed that good teachers are the most important factor in education. But he differed with Lethbridge on other points.

Education, he said, "should be purposeful and teach our children to cope with the problems of living in our society. School should help them to think and judge critically, teach them to trust their own abilities and show them democratic principles."

He called it a "myth of education" that children "don't want to learn and have to be force-fed education. Kids are energetic and creative and curious, and they love to learn if they're really interested."

He said he favors an educational environment in which the children are free to pursue whatever interests them the most and not be forced to "study math at 9 o'clock on Tuesdays just because that's what the schedule says."

Paul Frederick of Lagunitas, the young son of former trustee Winifred Frederick, asked Sloan if he thought "450 kids at a school should be allowed to do anything they want. Don't you think things would be a little chaotic?"

Sloan replied that he doesn't favor letting students do anything they want, but does think children with a natural desire to learn should be allowed to pursue their own educational courses without being forced to study certain subjects at certain hours.

"We can trust a child to know to a great degree what is in his own best interests," he said.

The candidates differed on coordinating elementary programs with high school programs. Lethbridge said he favors a system of reporting to the elementary district the progress of its alumni in high school, and tailoring upper elementary programs to prepare students for high school.

Sloan, on the other hand, said young children could be best equipped for high school by "giving them the confidence they need to adapt to the high school environment."

Both men endorsed the district's lone multigraded classroom, which includes students from kindergarten through the third grade, but Lethbridge qualified his approval by saying definite need should be established before more such programs are put into effect. Sloan said he would like to see a lot more multigraded classes.

If faced with a fiscal squeeze in the district, Lethbridge said, the costs of administration and busing should be examined for possible cuts and the best teachers kept but the poor ones fired.

Umbrella Protection For Marine Uses In New Sausalito Proposal

By PAT ANGLE

New regulations for Sausalito's central waterfront district now under consideration by the city council and planning commission would exclude almost all retail stores and service operations from the area, the Independent-Journal learned yesterday.

Only retail establishments and services directly related to marine uses (such as boat sales and repair) would be permitted in the waterfront if the new rules are adopted by the city, according to City Planning Director H. Eric Borgwardt.

Borgwardt said the proposed change in the waterfront district — a city zone established in 1969 — was part of the planning commission's intention to create marine-oriented environment, as opposed to an area primarily devoted to retail and service establishments catering to visitor trade."

Uses currently permited in the zone include apparel and accessory stores, gift, novelty and souvenir shops, art galleries, handicraft shops and beauty shops.

As envisioned, the boundaries of the central waterfront district would include Mono Street on the north, the Sausalito sandspit on the south, Railroad Avenue on the east and Bridgeway on the west.

The planning director admitted some property owners with plans for development in the area would greet the proposed limitations on use with "less than enthusiasm."

But he did not think the downtown business community, relying on tourist spending, would object to the regulations. "If visitor-oriented uses were allowed to extend to the north, this would undoubtedly weaken business downtown," Borgwardt said. "It would tend to further alienate Sausalito residents from the waterfront area."

Northern expansion of tourist businesses also would harm the city's promotion of the Caledonia Street business district, Borgwardt said.

Robert D. Bauerle, president of the Sausalito Businessmen's Association, responded to the proposed regulations by saying he was "very angry with what I consider to be a continued vendetta by the council on the business community.

"It seems to me the City of Sausalito has done everything possible to keep visitors out of the central area and now wants to build an imaginary fence around trouists who manage to slip into the city," he said. "It appears to be the council's intention to confine visitors to a small limited area."

Bauerle, who will be a candidate for the city council in April, accused the council of "destroying potential revenue right and left." He said the waterfront rules under consideration would "well raise property taxes in Sausalito to the point where some citizens could no longer afford to live here."

On Tuesday the city council studied the proposed regulations to govern the zoning district, rules which have been formulated the past year by the planning commission.

The council made some changes, including elimination of restaurants featuring live entertainment as acceptable uses in the waterfront, then referred the suggested changes back to planners.

At no time during about two hours of discussion on the project did the council make it clear the regulations would ban nearly all shops and service establishments from the area, and make most existing establishments, including several restaurants, specialty stores and general businesses, nonconforming.

Additional Buses Help Reduce Standee Ranks

Eighteen additional buses deployed in the Golden Gate Bridge District's new commuter bus system last night sped loading times in downtown San Francisco and virtually eliminated standees, district officials reported.

The additional buses brought to 136 the number returning from San Francisco last night, an increase made possible largely by hiring of 12 more drivers.

Loading also was speeded by running buses 10 minutes ahead of the published schedules as well as on the scheduled departures, reported H. Donald White, bus transit manager. This was aimed at taking advantage of the fact commuters are ready to board earlier than when they had to walk down to the Ferry Building under Greyhound operations, he said.

"We had enough equipment down there to evacuate the financial district last night," said Jerome Kuykendall, the bridge district's transportation developer.

White said he and his staff will work over the weekend to improve further dispatching of coaches. "It'll be a helluva lot better organized on Monday, I'm damn sure," he said.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, noting that the Hawthorne Street stop had been eliminated because of traffic problems, appealed to commuters from that area to shift to the stop on Fremont Street between Market and Mission streets. Some have been going back to the staging area at Third and Perry streets, which just creates confusion and loses time, he said.

He predictdd that by tonight the problem of standees "will be just about gone."

Luehring predicted "a complete revamp" of bus schedules in about 30 days "after we see how the pattern works out."

Smokers Were Everywhere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People throughout the world smoked more last year, the U.S. public health service said today.

"Cigarette smoking emerged as a major international health problem in 1971," said a PHS report which drew largely on information from the State Department and its overseas diplomatic stations. It added that in emerging and underdeveloped countries, cigarette smoking appeared to be increasing, especially among the 100 tobacco-producing nations.

But some governments have taken steps to reduce cigarette smoking because of its health hazards.

"During the year cigarette advertising was banned from television in Finland, Ireland and the United States and reduced by one-half in West Germany, where it will be phased out completely by 1973," said the PHS National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health.

Eighth-Floor Jump To Death

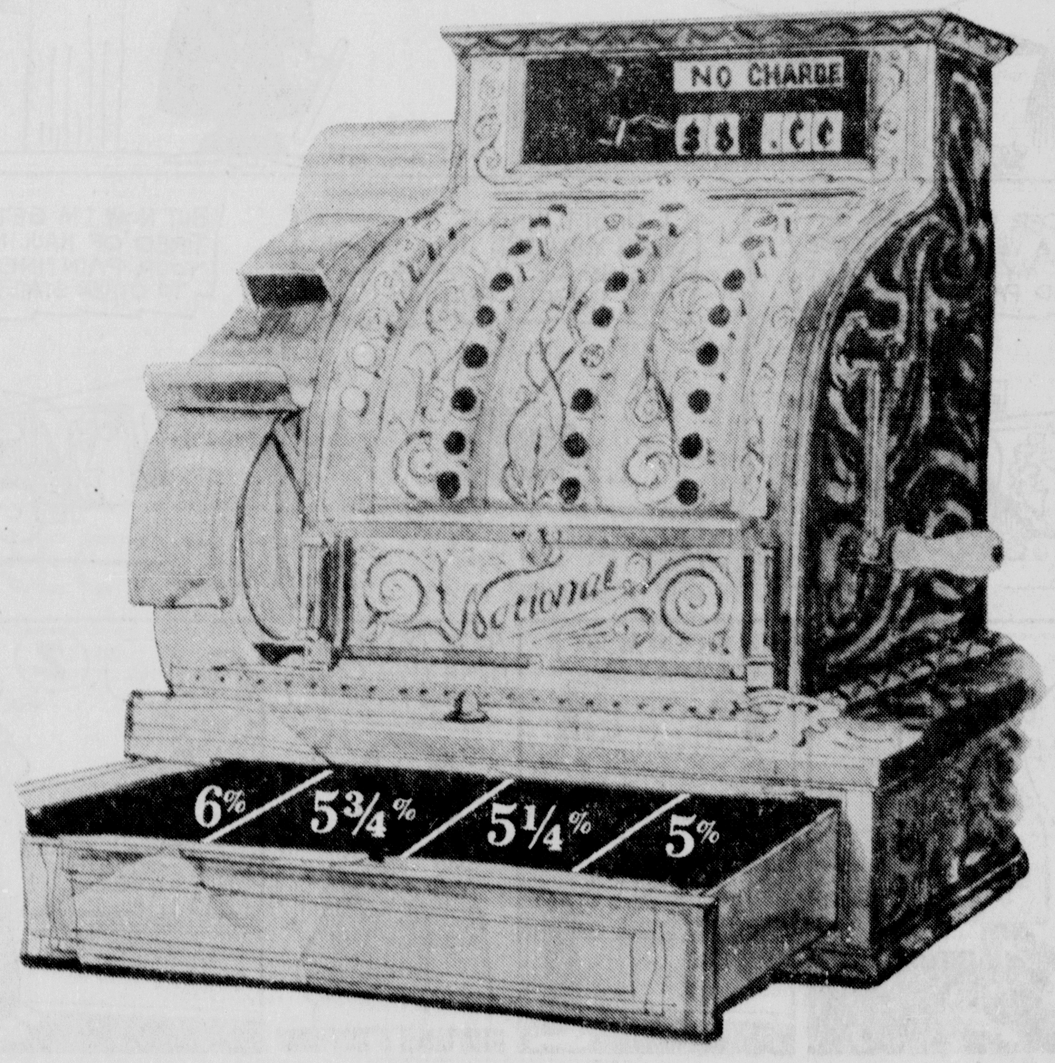

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 21-year-old man who told police he was "high" on LSD, was treated and released from a hospital Wednesday night, then jumped to his death from an eighth floor hotel window.

Police said the man, identified as Douglas C. Brown of Fullerton, was given a counteracting drug at central emergency hospital and released after he had jumped in front of a police car wearing only a towel.

After Brown returned to the hotel, he jumped to his death wearing only the sheet used to cover him at the hospital, police said.

1. The 13th President of the U.S.? This Vermont farmer's son with little formal schooling became a self-educated lawyer, university chancellor, and the second President "by act of God" when old soldier Zachary Taylor died in office: (A) Henry Clay; (B) Franklin Pierce; (C) Millard Fillmore.

2. A star football quarterback? A terrific College of Pacific passer and runner, this little guy (5'7", 165 lbs.) from Oakdale, Calif., was most valuable player in the 1949 East-West Shrine game and later was a U.S. combat officer in Korea: (A) Paul McCloskey; (B) Eddie LeBaron; (C) Sammy Baugh.

3. A Hollywood gilm cutie? Dancing before GIs in wartime Korea, this uninhibited show girl stimulated news headlines for not keeping all of her talents top secret but the publicity put her assets on view in films like "Daddy Long Legs": (A) Terry Moore; (B) Gypsy Rose Lee; (C) Marilyn Monroe.

4. A popular magazine cartoonist? Work by this artist is said to be monstrous but editors of "The New Yorker" have published it since 1935 and TV producers made his wierd creatures into a haunting "family situation" comedy: (A) J. N. (Ding) Darling; (B) Ted Key; (C) Charles Addams.

ANSWERS

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

'End Play' Generally Takes Place Toward End Of A Hand

A throw-in play is often called an end play because it usually takes place toward the end of a hand, but this emphasis on the last few tricks should not blind declarer to the right play at the first trick.

LOW DIAMOND

South played the low diamond from dummy in order to get a free finesse. After winning the first trick with the ten of diamonds, South led a spade to dummy's king and returned a club, losing to the ace. West took the ace of diamonds, capturing dummy's king, and then led the jack of diamonds to force out South's queen.

South was now sure of two diamonds, two clubs, three hearts and one spade. When neither hearts nor clubs broke evenly, South had only eight tricks. West was sure to get three diamonds and the two black aces, defeating the contract.

BETTER START

South should get off to a better start by playing dummy's king of diamonds at the first trick. The bidding makes it clear that West has the three missing aces, and South should see what will happen if he plays low from the dummy.

Declarer leads a club from dummy at the second trick, losing the king to West's ace. Now West cannot afford to lead diamonds for fear of giving declarer three tricks in the suit.

In search of a safe exit, West gets out with a heart. South wins with the ace of hearts, leads a spade to dummy's king and continues with the queen of spades to drive out the ace. West gets out with another heart.

QUEEN TAKEN

South takes the queen of hearts, cashes his high clubs and then leads the heart to dummy's king. No suit has broken well, but declarer cashes the jack of spades and throws West into the lead with the fourth round of spades.

Declarer has already taken eight tricks, and West must lead from the A-J of diamonds, yielding the ninth trick to South's queen.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened with one club, and partner has responded one spade.

It is up to you again, with:

♥ - A Q 8
♦ - Q 10 7 6
♣ - K Q J 4 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

The hand is not quite strong enough for a rebid of two diamonds, which might force partner to bid three clubs with a very poor hand. Avoid rebidding in notrump when you have a singleton.

Film On Mayas

Forgotten Past Back To Present

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The energy of three archaeology students brought Denmark's long-forgotten past back to the present in a successful experiment at the National Museum.

TASTEFUL REFINEMENT, QUIET, BEAUTY & CONVENIENCE

3 bdrm. home of good quality and pleasing design. Spacious living room. Spacious master bdrm. suite. Open formal dining room. 1 of the bdrms. is particularly well suited for a study with a built-in desk, book shelves and an open beam ceiling. The living room also has an open beam ceiling and is enhanced by a floor to ceiling used brick fireplace, and a beautiful view of Mt. Tamalpais.

The view from this home is especially notable. The home is located on a quiet, gently curving, gently rising street with just enough elevation to look across to a permanent tree covered hill preserved and up to the mountain.

The patio is all brick and has a handsome outdoor fireplace. The garden blooms with hundreds of camellias and rhododendrons in their season plus other flowering shrubs and is backed by evergreens and giant oaks.

The quiet privacy and beauty surrounding this home is quiet remarkable, especially when one considers the convenience of commuting and nearness of schools and other essential facilities. $55,000.

MCAL Basketball Season Commences Tonight

WILL GARNER
Tam star

By LEW CODDINGTON

Much of the attention will be focused on three big men with three different missions when the 1972 Marin County Athletic League basketball season opens tonight with a slate of four games.

The season's first tip-off will occur at 6:45 p.m., when Marin Catholic High School visits Novato High. Three other games are scheduled for 8 o'clock — San Marin at undefeated Redwood, Drake at San Rafael and Tamalpais at Terra Linda.

Marty Moroski of Novato, a potential all-league forward last year until he broke his arm, should prove to be one of the finest players in the MCAL this year. He scores a lot of points (18.8 a game), but his main function will be to stabilize the young Novato team with his experience and poise.

Will Garner of Tamalpais, an all-league forward this year, will score — and score and score. He led the league with a 21.9 average last year and scored during the current non-league season at a similar clip. His scoring will be needed if Tam is to upset Redwood for the league title.

McGee is a major reason why Redwood is the only MCAL team ever to go undefeated through the non-league season. The Giants are 13-0, and in their roughest test, McGee scored 26 points to lead them to a 43-41 triumph over Sacred Heart of San Francisco last Wednesday. His performance was doubly impressive because it was achieved against Sacred Heart's fine center, Glen Hubbard.

In many ways, McGee personifies the Redwood team. One trait that marks both is unselfishness.

When he does not have a hot hand, McGee steps aside and concentrates on rebounding and defense — he has scored as few as four points in a game this year. When he is hitting, however, he steps in and dominates the whole show.

The same is true of forward Tim Hennessy, who took a back seat to McGee for a couple of games and then exploded for 29 Monday night against Los Altos. Hennessy, in fact, is the team's leading scorer (16.0), while McGee has 13.8, guard Mike Connor 10.7 and guard Sam Farb 9.2.

Farb is another example. Unperturbed that his average has dipped below 10, Farb has been concentrating on assists lately and gathered 11 against Los Altos. Connor's point totals and over-all play are always consistent.

Another McGee trait is a search for self-improvement. "I played forward in the summer league," said McGee, who at 6-foot-6 probably will be a forward in college. "I've been working on my ball handling and outside shooting. My rebounding is improving — this year it's been the real consistent part of my game.

Redwood as a team shows this trait as well. "Farb and Hennessy are really improved," said McGee. "You can't key on any one man anymore. Anybody can hurt you from anywhere."

McGee intends to play basketball in college, and "about 50 schools" have expressed interest in the 6-foot-6 senior. He is undecided about what school to pick, but says "I'd like to stay in the West, although not necessarily in California."

The consensus around the league at this moment is that Redwood will win the championship and Tamalpais will finish second. Below that it will be a dogfight, with Terra Linda probably a shade better than any of the others.

Capsule summaries of the teams and their chances follow:

Tamalpais (7-5) — The Indians are very quick, and play a much more wide-open game than Redwood. They force errors, but also make them, and on a given night their "force-make" ratio often determines their fate.

Forward Jared McFerrin, a double-figure scorer throughout the non-league season, keeps opposing defenses from draping themselves on Garner.

Terra Linda (6-5) — The Trojans run more than anybody else in the league, and average 61.7 points a game, the MCAL's best. However, they also surrender 60.2, more than any other team.

Terra Linda has a fine outside-inside combination of guard John Buckley and center Mark Lowey. They have identical averages, 11.6.

SPORT NOTES

Sherbert's Draft Situation Viewed

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Jim Sherbert gets his second crack at all-star competition tomorrow in the Hula Bowl and if he performs as well as he did the first time, I think he'll go high in the Feb. 1-2 pro football draft.

Sherbert, a 225-pound lad who did his prep footballing at Terra Linda High before his successful four-year stint at Oregon State, is a derensive end for the North in tomorrow's televised game in Honolulu. It comes on at 1 p.m. on channels 7, 11 and 13 and Sherbert will be that guy with No. 90 on his jersey who makes so many tackles.

He did quite a job for the West squad in its 17-13 victory over the East in last Saturday's Shrine game at Candlestick and must have raised an eyebrow or two among the throngs of pro football scouts. You can bet he'll be given another long look tomorrow and another good game might boost him to the top five rounds in the draft.

TWO SAN RAFAEL High School students will be competing in the U.S. Junior National 35-Kilometer Walking Championship tomorrow at Micke Grove Park in Stockton. Jerry Lansing, a senior, and Brian Snazelle, a sophomore, will be competing in the race that covers approximately 21 miles. And no, smartie, they are not walking to Stockton but will go by conventional auto.

NOVATO HIGH SCHOOL Athletic Director Al Scott is busy putting together another "Boxing Night" program which draws hundreds every year to the North Marin area. Scott has set the date for Feb. 9. It will be the eighth annual Novato High School intramural boxing show in the school's gym. Time is 8 p.m.

DON MEROFF, physical education head at Santa Venetia Middle School, read an I-J story about a new broomball league going on in Corte Madera and said, "Heck, we've been playing broomball at our school for the past two years."

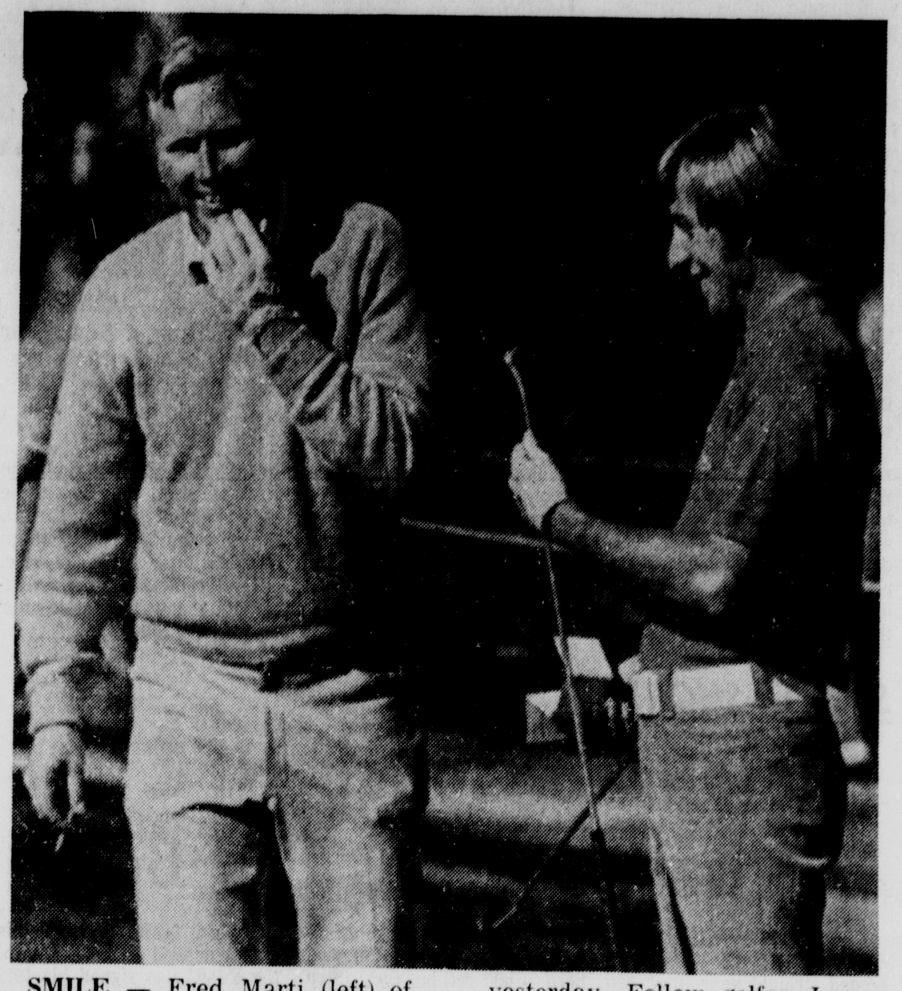

Rather than ice, the sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Santa Venetia school play their broomball on the gymnasium hardwood, using a broom and deflated volley ball.

"Our kids are playing broomball every day," said Meroff. "They would rather play broomball than eat."

PUBLIC RELATIONS man Larry M. Cahn of the California Wine Institute wrote me about a recent column of mine on Earl Edwards pouring some wine for himself and teammates after the 49ers beat Washington in their playoff game.

"What was particularly pleasing was the fact that usually the only time Champagne is mentioned in connection with a winners' dressing room celebration is when it is being poured over the victors' heads," said Cah. "Your description seems a much more civilized approach to the use of champagne and, of course, we have every reason to believe the champagne in question was from a California Winery."

(UPI Telephoto)

IN CAMPBELL OPEN

Marti Grabs 1-Shot Lead

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Fred Mari (65) was joyous, Arnold Palmer (69) was satisfied, Lee Trevino (74) was unhappy, young John Mahaffey (66) was bug-eyed, Curtis Sifford (66) breathless, the weather was ideal and the crowd was big and lively.

That was the way the 72-hole $125,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open started the new golf year Thursday. The weather was balmy in the high 70s. The crowd was estimated at 12,500.

Marti, a 31-year-old pro from Baytown, Tex., was an early finisher and shot 35-30—65, six under par for the Rancho Park municipal course.

That stood up for the lead going into the second round. A stroke back at 66 were five pros including Hale Irwin, runnerup here in 1970; George Archer, Bob E. Smith, Sifford, the nephew of the more prominent Charles who shot a 74; and Mahaffey, a slim Texan who is a disciple of the great Ben Hogan.

Out of the field of 144, 39 broke par and 26 matched it.

All alone at 67 in seventh place was another young pro not used to the heady atmosphere up front—George Boutell of Phoenix, Ariz. Another stroke back at 68 were Gene Littler, Tom Weiskopf, Larry Wood, and Jim Wiechers.

Palmer, shooting for his fourth L.A. Open title, had a 69 which put him in a tie for 12th place with 17 other pros including Orville Moody. Dale Douglass, Ken Still, Tom Aaron, Don January, and John Miller.

Palmer had four birdies and two bogeys on his 35-34-69 card. Par is 36-35—71.

"Let's say it was a fair round," he said. "I didn't hit the ball as well as I'd like to. I wasn't in any serious trouble but I wasn't as sharp as I could have been. For the first tournament of the year, it wasn't too bad. I hope to improve during the rest of the week." He and Trevino played together and had a mob of thousands following them.

Trevino, who said he's been doing roadwork to get into shape for a great start in '72, took 36-38—74, three over. He said the greens were hard in some spots. On at least four holes, he said, his approach shots hit in front of the pin and bounded over the green.

"I feel like I was playing on Pico Boulevard," he said. "I knocked it over too many greens. I felt like I was headed for Tijuana. Now I've got to come out here and try to shoot a 68 or a 67 to make the cut."

The cut after 36 holes tonight will reduce the field to the low 70s and ties.

Mahaffey looked a bit wide eyed but kept his cool. He was most polite under questioning by sports writers. He works for Hogan in Texas. Fort Worth where the old master has a golf club factory.

San Rafael, Novato, Tam Matmen Win

Novato, Tamalpais and San Rafael high schools all scored lopsided victories as the Marin County Athletic League wrestling season opened last evening.

Novato overwhelmed visiting Redwood, 45-18; Tamalpais trounced visiting San Marin, 51-14; and host San Rafael gave Drake's first-year team a hard introduction to league grappling, 75-0. Terra Linda drew a bye.

Novato stalwarts Dave Hutton (129 pounds) and Alan Brazell (120) each pinned their Redwood foes, as did Curt Belter (97), Jerry Lammers (156) and Jim Dolinsek (177).

The tone of the Tamalpais-San Marin contest was set in the first match, when Tam's Greg Ford decisioned San Marin's Dave Jensvold, 8-0, in a meeting of two of the league's best 97-pounders.

SHOT TWICE

John Odom Wounded In Georgia

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—Oakland Athletics pitcher Johnny Lee "Blue Moon" Odom says he "thought it was all over" when he was wounded twice while trying to stop a burglary in his mother's neighborhood.

"I was thinking I would never pitch again after that first shot. After the second shot I thought it was all over," said Odom, 26, from his hospital bed late Thursday.

Odom was listed in satisfactory condition with bullet wounds in the neck and side. The wounds apparently will not affect his pitching career.

Odom, visiting his mother, said his wife saw someone try to break into the house next to his mother's in Southwest Macon yesterday. Odom said he ran after the man and stopped him.

"I told him I wanted to ask him a few questions," Odom said. "He turned around said, "'What for?' and pulled out a gun and started shooting."

Odom said the man fired at him three times from "about 15 feet" with a .38 caliber pistol. Two of the shots struck Odom.

"Then he met up with a couple of other guys and they all took off,"

Police later arrested two juveniles in connection with the incident. They were not identified in adherence to a Georgia law prohibiting the naming of juvenile offenders.

Bobby Moore To Play End

HONOLULU (UPI) —Ask any of the pro football scouts here for Saturday's annual Hula Bowl football game who will be the number one draft choice among the 60 players and most will answer Oregon's Bobby Moore.

Moore, 6-2, 215, has played a lot of positions at Oregon but will be used primarily as an end for the North in the Hula Bowl.

The scouts also think Notre Dame's Walt Patulski will be the first lineman to be drafted and Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge the first signal-caller to be picked from among those here.

Both teams were given a tour of Pearl Harbor Thursday and after lunch, they visited Tripler Army Medical Center to call on wounded Vietnam veterans. Then they went back to the practice field.

Cornell's Ed Marinaro, UPI's college Player of the Year and runnerup in the Heisman Trophy balloting, will be at fullback along with Nebraska's Jeff Kinney, for the North. It's a new position for both.

And Marinaro isn't too happy about the move.

"We have six tailbacks," North coach Bob Devaney of Nebraska said in explaining the move. "Marinaro and Kinney were the biggest two."

Marinaro attributed his poor showing in the East-West Shrine game to playing fullback. He carried six times and fumbled twice. But when told by Devaney that North plays call for the fullbacks to run wide, he seemed somewhat heartened.

An interesting sidelight in the clash will be a duel between Tom Marcol of Hillsdale College in Michigan and Marv Bateman of Utah.

Marcol, a soccer-style kicker for the North, has a 62-yard field goal to his record. Bateman, from the traditional American-style school of kicking, will be handling the field goals, extra points and punting for the South. The two hooked up previously in the East-West game.

Marcol agrees with pro scouts that soccer-style kickers are more accurate. "Soccer style kickers are able to control the ball better because they have learned by passing the ball with their feet in soccer games," he said.

But Bateman will be out to prove that the traditional style of kicking is not on its way out, as some pro scouts believe.

Landry Hints Dallas May Broaden Attack

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys may be ready to throw conservatism out the window when they meet the Miami Dolphins at New Orleans, Jan. 16 in the Super Bowl VI.

That's the hint, at least, cast out by none other than that well-known coaching right-winger, Tom Landry.

The Cowboys' National Football Conference championship offense has been fairly well of late as witness the 20-12 and 14-3 playoff triumphs over Minnesota and San Francisco to earn the return trip to the Super Bowl. But, the defense has drawn much of the credit for the wins.

"Actually, we haven't been very efficient at anything —but winning —in the last couple of games," Landry said early this week after his team had just beaten the Forty Niners for the second year in a row.

"I'm not overly concerned — mainly because I feel we played two very fine defenses in the Vikings and Forty-Niners. But, we're going to be facing another good defense in Miami. And, we're going to have to improve."

"Maybe we've been gliding, too conscious of not making mistakes and not opening up on offense. We are not playing a reckless, hard-running game," Landry said.

Duane Thomas, the Cowboys' premier running back, seemed hesitant at plunging into the line against San Francisco and his indecisions raised some eyebrows in the press coop as well as in the stands.

But, Landry had an answer for that.

"Thomas is excellent at following the blockers and if he doesn't have a hole, he'll veer away then explode. San Francisco was filling the holes a lot. Duane doesn't run blind or reckless."

Golden Gate Walloped By Buresh

Undefeated Buresh, Vallarino, Claxon and Costamanga laid down the law yesterday, defeating the Golden Gate Trotters in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league play, 61-28, behind Ray Wolford's 27 points.

Next week, BVC&C will clash with the undefeated Turkeys, who squeaked past Motorcycles Unlimited, 58-54, as Otis McAllister scored 21 points and Bill Broody 20. Jay Speck tallied 20 for the losers.

Retail Credit bombarded the Roadrunners, 51-32, as Fred Harms scored 18. Quality Motorcycle swamped Schlienger, 49-27, behind Tony De Prado's 14 points.

PORTLAND FALLS

Thurmond, Mullins Lead Warrior Win

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors' Nate Thurmond picked a big night to slip over the 10,000-point mark for his National Basketball Association career.

The big center erupted for 37 points Thursday night, sinking 17 of 27 shots from the field, as he and guard Jeff Mullins pushed the Warriors to their fourth straight victory with a 119-115 decision over the Portland Trail Blazers in the night's lone NBA action.

Mullins matched Thurmond's torrid shooting with 13 of 21 from the field and a 34-point total.

Thurmond needed 32 points to reach the 10,000-point plateau, and the game was stopped while club owner Franklin Mieuli presented Thurmond the game ball early in the final period.

The Trail Blazers, sparked by rookie Sidney Wicks' nine fourth-period points, made it tight at the finish after trailing by 11 points entering the final quarter.

Wicks finished with 29 points, connecting on half of his 18 field goal attempts, and topped both clubs with 19 rebounds. Thurmond was Golden State's leading rebounder with 15.

The victory lifted the Warriors' record to 22-19 and moved them to within one game of second-place Seattle in the Pacific Division.

FISH AND GAME

Some Of Our Animals Are In Real Danger

By AL GIDDINGS

The newly passed legislation raising the hunting and fishing licenses for the state may have been just in time. A report called, "At the Crossroads," which is really a report on California's endangered and rare fish and wildlife has just been released by Ray Arnett, Department of Fish and Game director. The report was written by Howard R. Leach of the Wildlife Management Branch and by Leonard O. Fisk of the Inland Fisheries Branch.

The opening pages contain a letter to Governor Reagan from Arnett which explains the report and also has this to say: "In the case of endangered species, immediate measures are required to ensure their continued survival. We strongly urge that public funds be provided to place under public stewardship those habitat areas critical to these animals and to support the necessary programs of protection and management.

"THAT EXTINCTION is inevitable for any of California's endangered animals is unacceptable. History records that many of the nation's leading scientists at the turn of the century were predicting early extinction for a variety of California's wildlife. These included the band tailed pigeon, white tailed kite, sage grouse, mountain sheep, prong-horn antelope, California mule deer, ducks and geese. Fortunately, these prophecies of doom proved untrue, for none of these animals are now extinct or appear in this report.

"Since the first protective fish and game laws were enacted in 1901, the state's game and sport fish have become the most carefully tended and conserved of all natural resources. Their protection and management is due to the hundreds of millions of dollars sportsmen have willingly provided through license fees and taxes on sporting equipment.

"WE HOPE THIS report will engender public interest and support in providing the funding and positive measures essential to the survival of California's threatened fish and wildlife. Without such response, many of these life forms may disappear forever."

From the report itself, this part seems most important: "We are now at the crossroads, while game species are assured continued propagation and relative abundance, 43 forms of California nongame fish and wildlife are now threatened with extinction or endangerment. Unless local, state and federal governments and citizens are willing to exercise responsible care and provide funding, the prospect for continued survival of many of these life forms is in doubt. In today's world, endangered wildlife cannot survive on their own."

THE FOLLOWING species and subspecies of California birds, mammals, fish, amphibia and reptiles are hereby declared to be endangered or rare as indicated.

ENDANGERED

1. Birds: California brown pelican; California condor; southern bald eagle; American peregrine falcon; California clapper rail; Yuma clapper rail; lightfooted clapper rail; California least tern.
2. Mammals: Morro Bay kangaroo rat; salt marsh harvest mouse.
3. Fishes: Colorade squawfish; Mohave chub; Owens pupfish; Tecopa pupfish; and the unarmored three spine stickleback.
4. Amphibians: Santa Cruz long-toed salamander; and the desert slender salamander.
5. Reptiles: blunt-nosed leopard lizard and the San Francisco garter snake.

RARE

1. Birds; California black rail
2. Mammals: Mohave ground squirrel; Stephens kangaroo rat; Fresno kangaroo rat; San Joaquin kit fox; island fox; wolverine; Guadalupe fur seal; California bighorn sheep; penninsular bighorn sheep.
3. Fishes: lost river sucker; shortnose sucker; humpback sucker; bonytail.
4. Amphibians: Siskiyou Mountain salamander; Kern Canyon slender salamander; Tehachapi slender salamander; limstone salamander; Shasta salamander and the black toad.
5. Reptiles: Southern rubber boa; Alameda striped racer and the giant garter snake.

THE REPORT goes on to list the localities where these animals are found with recommendations on how to further protect or enhance their existence.

The common law of this country that "Wildlife is the property of the people, the sovereignty of which they have vested with the state to be conserved and managed for the benefit of all people" has been defended in court and reflected in Federal and State laws since colonial times. Yet by tradition the hunter and the fisherman have borne the financial burden of supporting the conservation and management of these resources.

Seals Face Detroit Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI)—The California Golden Seals, struggling along in third place in the National Hockey League West division, face a tough job tonight when they host the hot Detroit Red Wings.

Even though they are coming off an impressive 6-2 win over Los Angeles Wednesday night, the Seals have only won twice in the last 10 games while holding down the third spot with 32 points, three ahead of Pittsburgh.

The Red Wings lost 4-2 to Minnesota on Wednesday, but had won four straight before that contest, including a 6-3 decision over the Seals.

At the halfway mark of the season, the Seals' record on the road indicates they can't muster the strength for a run at second place in the West. And if they hope to maintain the tpird spot, they will have to continue their home record.

On the road, California has a 5-13-2 record. But at the Oakland coliseum arena, the Seals are 7-8-6.

Bowling To Benefit Veterans

Marin bowlers, with few strikes to spare, can bet their bottom Brunswick that fun and charity do mix.

This will be in evidence tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. when local keglers partake in the kickoff of the Bowlers Victory Legion state tournament at Nave Lanes, Ignacio. The tourney continues through Sunday.

Bowlers will battle for nine top divisional slots earmarked for a trip to the BVL state finals in San Jose on April 14. according to Bea Hoffman, Marin County Woman's Bowling Association BVL chairman.

While the competitors vie for the four-man and five-woman vacancies, Mrs. Hoffmann continued, "they know there are no losers. The money raised by donations goes nationwide for therapy equipment for U.S. armed service veterans."

Mrs. Hoffmann added that "it is truly a moving experience." The charity event, which has already raised $3,376, has the Hamilton Air Force Base colorguard as the featured attraction in the pre-bowling ceremonies.

"As for the bowling itself," she noted, "the bowler rolling the top series in each division will get the trip, a trophy and a watch or some comparable jewelry piece."

NHL Quality Questioned

Russian Says Style 'Primitive'

NEW YORK (UPI) —Drawing the line between diplomacy and honesty can sometimes be a tenuous tightrope for a man who has something to say.

Anatoli Tarasov, who masterminded the rise of ice hockey in the Soviet Union over the last 25 years to its current world amateur supremacy, was the man on the spot Thursday night. His veteran team had just wiped out the young United States Nationals, 11-4, for its fifth victory in as many tries against the Americans, but once the preliminary courtesy questions were out of the way following the game, Tarasov was pressed for his opinion of professional hockey.

"Your hockey players (referring to the players in the National Hockey League) are the greatest masters of hockey," was Tarasov's diplomatic reply through an interpreter. But, perhaps peeved at having the stature of his own team questioned during its U.S. tour, Tarasov continued:

"Last night (Wednesday) we Russians were unlucky in that we saw one very good team (the New York Rangers) and one very weak team (the St. Louis Blues, who dropped a 9-1 decision to New York).

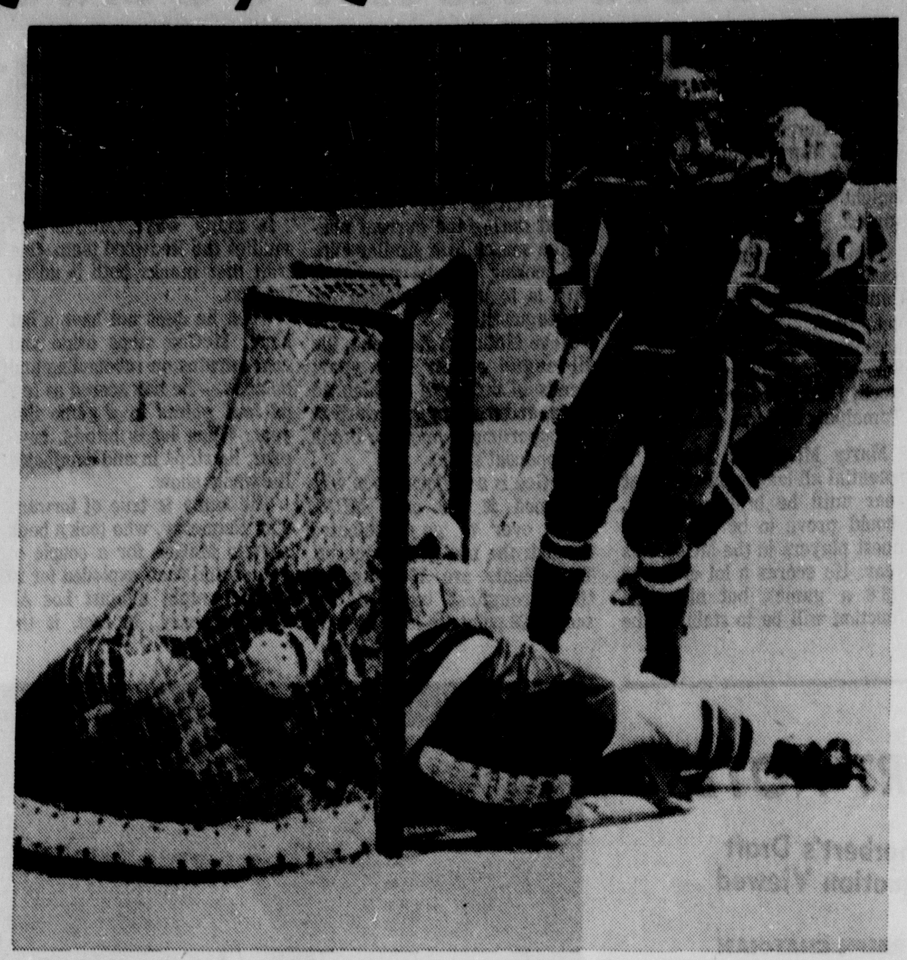

"Newspapermen always write that the Canadians are very good sportsmen who fight to the end, but that's not what we saw. We saw some very disorganized sportsmen. Your players are good on a technical level and can do all kinds of things with the puck, but don't you think at the same time you're playing very primitive hockey? It is difficult to understand why your players underrate the price of the puck (by losing possession of it with poor passing)."

Asked if he felt the Canadians should change their style to the slick-passing, cohesive game used so effectively by his team, Tarasov replied: "Let them stick to their type of game. Later the Canadian professionals will change their style after meeting the Europeans."

Tarasov, round-faced, chubby and pleasant, often uses homilies to describe situations. Talking about coaching, for example, he said: "If you live 25 years with your wife you can get bored at times, but you understand each other. But a coach never gets bored. It's an exceptional joy of life."

When he was asked why his team moves so quickly, even during warmup sessions, he said, "There is one law in life, and this law says movement."

Murray Williamson of Minneapolis, Minn., serving his fifth and final year as coach of the U.S. National team, is a great admirer of Tarasov and gives him all the credit for developing the Russians as the world and Olympic champions.

POWER — Soviet Union skaters Yuri Blinov (8) and Boris Mikhailov (foreground) forced their American hockey opponents Tim Regan (24) and Dick McGlynn (20) into the nets yesterday in New York. The U.S. skaters made the save but lost the game 11-4.

Nolan To Coach NFC At Los Angeles Pro Bowl

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

LOS ANGELES — For the second straight year, Dick Nolan of the San Francisco Forty Niners was named to coach the National Football Conference All-Stars in the 22nd annual Pro Bowl football game Jan. 23.

Selection of Nolan was announced a day after Don McCafferty of the Baltimore Colts was announced as coach of the American Football Conference All-Stars.

Nolan coached the NFC team in last year's Pro Bowl game and his squad scored a 27-6 victory over the AFC. The San Francisco coach was selected for guiding his Forty Niners to the finals of the NFC playoffs in which they were beaten by Dallas.

ATLANTA — The Georgia Tech Athletic Board meets tomorrow to hash out the charges made by an alumni group against head football coach Bud Carson.

Carson came under heavy fire after the Yellow Jackets completed a 6-5 season by losing to Mississippi 41-18 in the Peach Bowl — a game the players had twice voted against playing.

An alumni group after Carson's job gave Tech's acting president, Dr. James Boyd, a 42-page document which listed their complaints — including such things as overzealousness and practices that ran too long — and demand that he be fired or quit.

Carson has steadfastly refused to bow to the pressure and it appeared Tech, if it wished to replace him, would have to fire its football coach for the first time in its 80-year history.

TAMPA, Fla. — The Baltimore Colts may not be moving here — just yet, but the Tampa Sports Authority announced yesterday the Colts will be on hand from July to September for training and for three NFL exhibition games as well.

Tampa interests have been trying to lure the Colts to this city permanently for months, but the agreement announced yesterday means at least Colts games against the Washington Redskins, Detroit Lions, and Pittsburgh Steelers in pre-season action will be held at Tampa Stadium.

It also means the Colts will workout at the University of South Florida campus here; pay only 8 per cent instead of the old 15 per cent of the gate to the city; be guaranteed at least 45,000 "season" tickets for the three exhibition games, and also receive most of the parking revenue and a percentage of the food concessions.

HOUSTON — The president of Rice University, his list of candidates for head coach and athletic director cut down by default, today examined four nominees in hopes of filling the vacancy by the weekend.

Coach Johnny Majors of Iowa State, who wants to build the Cyclones into a contender for the Big Eight Conference championship, yesterday rejected the Southwest Conference coaching position offered by Dr. Norman Hackersman.

Baseball

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Indians' third baseman Graig Nettles, kicked out of professional baseball in Venezuela, said yesterday upon his return here it was all the result of "a lack of translation."

Nettles, to be honored this month as 1971 Indians' Man of the Year, also signed his 1972 contract when he got back. Terms were not disclosed.

SAN JUAN, P.R. — Puerto Rican outfielder Roberto Clemente said yesterday he plans to ask the Pittsburgh Pirates for $200,000 to sign a new contract this year.

The announcement was made in Clemente's behalf by Terry Garcia, Winter League business manager, during the annual All-Star game of the Puerto Rican winter circuit.

Garcia did not elaborate on the bare announcement.

Bowling

NEW YORK — Winning five of his match games last night, Larry Laub, San Francisco right-hander, has moved into first place as the match game segment of play began in the $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association's U.S. Open Bowling tournament.

The competition at Madison Square Garden went into its next-to-last day today with two more eight-game blocks before the five finalists are known.

Ernie Schlegel, Newburg, N.Y., the tournament leader since Tuesday's second round, was in the top position until his final game against George Pappas, Charlotte, N.C. when Pappas took a 215-201 decision Schlegel, trying for his first PBA crown, fell to third place.

Johnny Petraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y., leading money-winner in 1971 with over $85,000, slipped into second when he defeated Rich Bennett, Owego, N.Y., 225-187, in the last game of the evening season.

Free Agent Draft For Baseballers

NEW YORK (UPI)—One form of the draft still popular with eligible young men is the annual winter draft conducted by major league baseball.

Ask Don Gullett of the Cincinnati Reds, Bert Blyleven of the Minnesota Twins, Chris Speier of the San Francisco Giants and Chris Chambliss of the Cleveland Indians, all picked in the free agent draft in the last two years.

This year's draft, to be conducted next Wednesday, will consist of two phases. In the regular phase, the 24 clubs will select in inverse order of the 1971 finish, with the Indians having first pick and the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates selecting last. The San Francisco Giants will pick 20th, Oakland 21st. Players eligible are those not previously chosen in another draft.

In the secondary phase, players previously drafted but unsigned are eligible. The order of selection was determined by a draw, with the Minnesota Twins picking first and the New York Mets last.

Speier, a 21-year-old shortstop signed off the campus of the University of Santa Barbara, Calif., in 1970, appeared in 157 games last season for the Giants and batted .235.

Chambliss, who wasn't even listed on the Indians' spring training roster, came on to win Rookie of the Year honors in the A. L. with a .275 average and 48 runs-batted-in in 111 contests.

Other top prospects picked from the draft include Houston infielder Ron Metzger (1969), and pitchers Steve Dunning, Cleveland (1970) and Pete Broberg, Texas (1971).

PREPS

on two factors. One is how well they play defense; the other is how effective the bench is. Coach Bob Corley substitutes often and, so far, with good success.

Marin Catholic (7-7) — This year's "in" word among sportswriters and fans is "physical," and it's an appropriate one for the strong Wildcats. The trouble is that they are sometimes too physical.

When they have cut down on their fouls, the 'Cats have beaten some pretty good teams. They get balanced scoring from center Steve Vanni, forwards Dan Mahoney and Tim Stone, and guards Mickey Hurley and Jim Sullivan. Sullivan was honorable metion all-league last year.

Novato (6-6) — At the season's beginning, coach Jim Caranica ticked off about a dozen names of inexperienced players and said, "if two of these turn out, we'll have a good year." So far one has — guard Joe Robinson (9.1) — and the Hornets may be only one more star away from moving up a couple of notches.

Drake (7-5) — The Pirates have one of the most balanced teams since Eli Whitney invented interchangeable parts. Ten athletes play often as Drake relies on quickness and sheer numbers to compensate for lack of height and wear down the opposition.

John Channell seems to get a lot of playing team underneath, and guard Jit Singh quarterbacks the team. For other heroes, consult the roster. And don't overlook anybody — substitutes at Drake have their glory days almost as often as the regulars.

San Rafael (7-5) — The Bulldogs could finish anywhere up to third, depending on whether or not they reduce their errors and fouls. Their defense is the MCAL's stingiest, yielding only 46.5 points a game.

San Rafael has the makings of a fine front line with Bill Lechner, Wayne Lechner and Doni Canfield.

San Marin (4-6) — Lack of a really good big man will be harmful to the Mustangs, who will have a couple of good average-sized men up front, Fred Doar and Bart Saling.

Hoza Wright, second-team all-conference last year as a sophomore, forward, has been shifted to guard, and should star. He is averaging 14.4 so far this year.

THIS WEEK'S BUSINESS

Good Quarter For Tiburon Vintners

Marin County's Tiburon Vintners, owner of Windsor Vineyards in Sonoma County, had a good first quarter for its current fiscal year.

Net profits of $60,208, prior to extraordinary items, were achieved on sales of $839,082. This compares with earnings of $15,711 on sales of $539,106 for the first quarter (ended Oct. 31) for the prior year.

Earnings per share for the period were 10 cents, before extraordinary items, compared to four cents for the prior year.

FAIRCHILD CAMERA AND INSTRUMENT Corporation's systems technology division has received a $2.5 million Air Force-Navy contract for two of its Fairchild Sentry 400 systems to be used for testing ground support equipment modules to support the A-7 aircraft at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma and the Naval Air Rework Facility in Florida. It is the division's first entry into the government automatic test equipment market.

AMERICAN TRAINING SERVICES, INC., has announced a stock split in the form of a 50 per cent stock dividend on the basis of one share for every two shares held at the close of business Jan. 10. Net income for its nine-month period increased 300 per cent, from 17 cents to 66 cents per share.

AMERICAN PRESIDENT LINES has opened an office in Atlanta, Ga., and plans to establish another one this month in Cleveland. It will raise to nine the number of offices it has in the U.S.

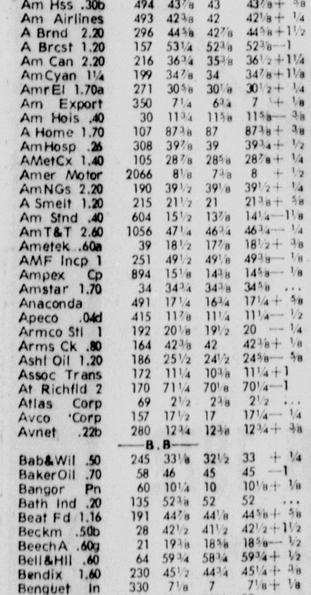

SUMITOMO BANK OF CALIFORNIA has reported net income of $3.6 million after taxes and before securities gains for 1971. This compares with $2.7 million for 1970. Net earnings per share were $4.15 for 1971 and $3.22 for 1970.

EVANS PRODUCTS CO., Portland, Ore. has applied to the Committee on Interest and Dividends for approval of an increase in its cash dividend on common stock to an annual rate of 50 cents per share or 12.5 cents quarterly. The company recently declared its customary 7.5 cents quartery dividend payable Feb. 15. Evans common stock was split two-for-one on Dec. 28.

VWR UNITED CORP. earnings were down in the nine months ended Nov. 30 to $1.3 million or 56 cents per share, as compared with $2 million or 85 cents per share during the previous year. Sales were reported at $204 million for the 1971 period, compared with $169.9 million in 1970.

LUCKY STORES, INC., reported nine-month sales of $1.22 billion for the period ended Oct. 31, compared with $1.08 billion for the prior year's nine-month period. Carmaker Earnings Dip Seen

By S.M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Earnings estimates for auto companies are being shaved downward a bit in the wake of the 7.7 per cent price increases recently announced on important sheet-metal products.

The rate of increase is triple the 2.5 per cent national guideline and 3 to 4 per cent more than Wall Street analysts had been calculating in most cases.

Park of this hike is already in the process of being passed on to consumers. For instance, the price board has approved a 2.5 per cent average increase for General Motors.

But now some Wall Streeters expect General Motors to seek additional price relief. That won't necessarily mean that General Motors, or any automaker for that matter, will boost its profits, however.

Indeed, Arthur Wallace of Estabrook & Co., an old-line brokerage firm, believes higher prices "imply lower new-car sales, and profits and stock prices would be adversely affected." His typical profit forecast now is 5 per cent lower than a month ago.

This does not detract from his basic view of the auto industry as an attractive area for investing. But some of the bloom is off the rose.

There is even the possibility, as Wallace sees it, of the steel-price increases failing to stick. He notes that the steel industry is operating at only two-thirds capacity, and thus its ability to command the new prices has a cloud over it.

On the other hand, David Healy, analyst with Burnham & Co., another brokerage firm, feels the steel-price hike is apt to hold.

"The steel companies need the increase badly and will close ranks," in his opinion. "Also, I think the demand will warrant the prices in 1972. Right now buyers are completing inventory liquidation, and demand is starting to rise rapidly."

However, Healy translates the steel-price increases into something less whittling for auto profits — 3 per cent, perhaps less.

The Burnham analyst looks for General Motors to net $7.75 per share in 1972 — 50 to 75 cents per share higher than most Wall Streeters now expect — vs. an estimated $6.75 in 1971. For Ford he's forecasting $8 per share vs. an estimated $5.75 to $6 this year. He pegs Chrysler at $3.50 in 1972 vs. an estimated $1.75 this year.

"Ford is a buy recommendation, the only buy in the group," in Healy's opinion. "I have a strong 'hold' or weak 'buy' on General Motors and Cprysler."

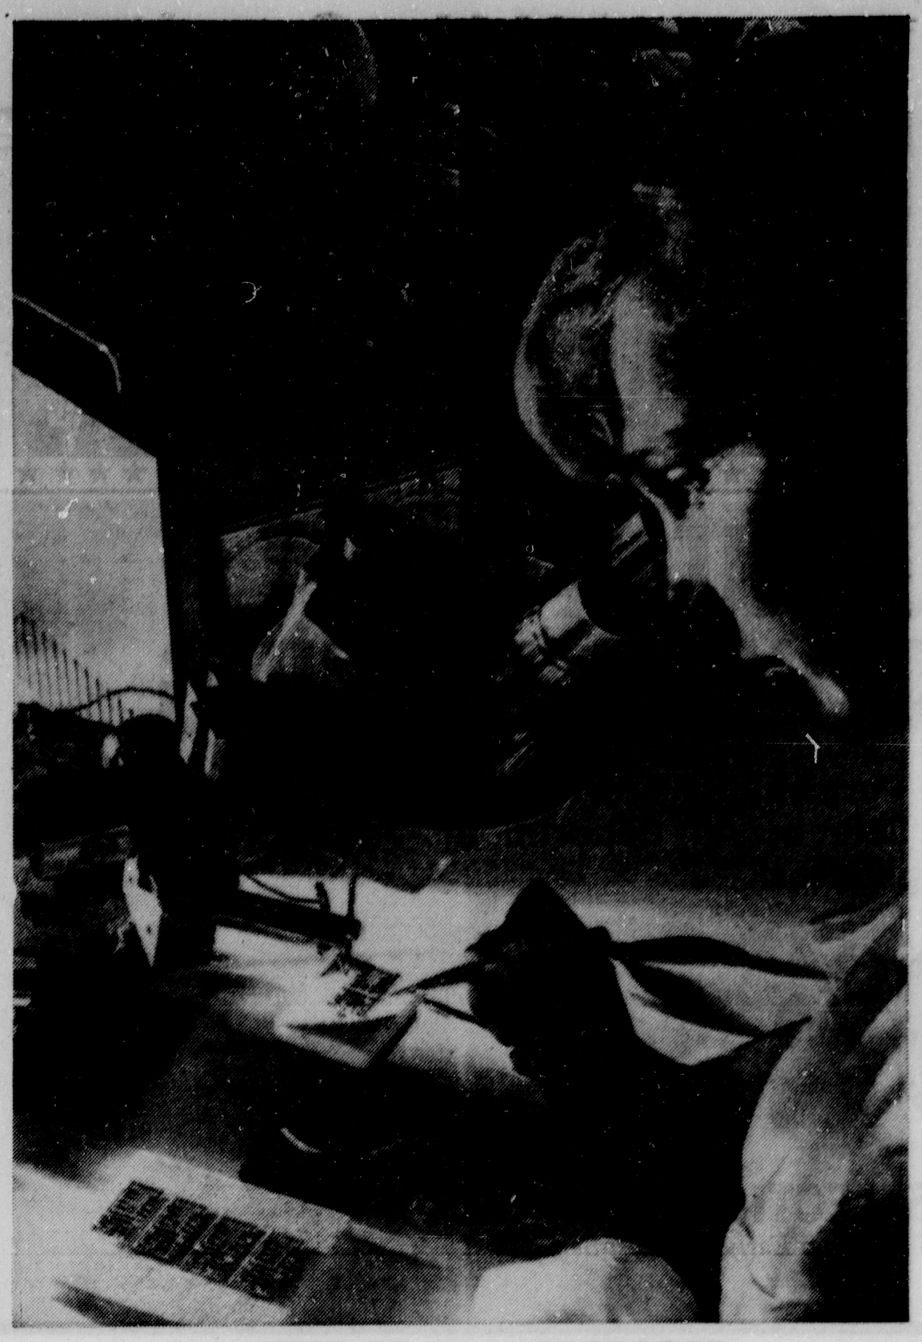

Healy says that despite the higher steel prices —"and there'll be other cost increases, don't forget" — there are offsets. "What's happening is that the auto companies are experiencing production gains. And they expect a richer product mix."

Healy says he has come up with higher-than-average earnings estimates because he anticipates higher sales than most analysts. "I look for something like 11.3 million units, including 1.5 or 1.6 million imports (which means 9.7 or 9.8 million domestics units)."

Standard estimates from the Detroit and Wall Street scene are in the range of 10.5 to 11 million units, leaving 9 to 9.5 million domestic units.

Wallace of Estabrook had expected 11.3 million units but revised downward to 11.1 million after the steel-price hike.

METERING BY MICROSCOPE

Complex electronic circuits mounted on ceramic tiles are metered under a microscope by a Honeywell employee in Brighton, Mass., before their installation into large computers. Each domino-size tile holds the equivalent of more than a dozen resistors, transistors and diodes.

Exchange Prices In An Advance

Although several high priced glamor stocks were pressured by profit taking, the market generally was bolstered by traditional new year reinvestment demand and spreading confidence in the economic outlook for the next several months.

The Labor Department reported that unemployment edged up to 6.1 per cent of the labor force in December, but it had little impact on stock market trading.

The rate was described by the Bureau of Labor Statistics as "essentially unchanged" and "not appreciably different" from November when it was 0.1 per cent less.

Prices were firm in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, CPA

New Fresno Service Center Will Process Tax Returns

For the first time this year you will be mailing your individual income tax returns to the Internal Revenue Service's new service center at Fresno.

Yes, that's right, Northern Californians will now have their tax returns processed in a California Service Center. The new address is:

Internal Revenue Service Center
5045 East Butler Avenue
Fresno, California 93730

All federal business tax returns should be sent to Ogden until July 1, 1972. After July 1, 1972, all federal business tax returns from California will be sent to Fresno.

Southern Californians will start sending their business returns to Fresno on July 1, 1972, and their individual returns after January 1, 1973.

Since this is a brand new operation at Fresno and anything can happen, it behooves us to be extra careful in the preparation of our returns and in retaining documentary evidence to support every item of income and deduction on the return.

Also, to help the IRS in processing and to avoid any possible errors that would cause us extra correspondence we should be sure that we use the address label that comes with our forms package and also that your Social Security number is on every piece of paper that we send to Fresno. It is especially important that the Social Security number be on every check so they will know which account to credit if the check becomes detached from your return.

If we can help the IRS do their job more efficiently we may well be helping ourselves far more than we realize.

The State of California has a new office for the Franchise Tax Board, and instead of sending the returns to the old address they should now be addressed to:

Franchise Tax Board
Sacramento, California 95867

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Check Reliability Of Issuing Authority

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Will you please give your opinion on long-term institutional bonds such as hospital or church investments. Is the 6½ per cent to 8½ per cent interest tax exempt? Are these safe investments? — G.B.

A. The answer to your final question depends entirely on the individual debt issue. Reliability of the issuing authority should be carefully checked. A circular can usually be obtained through your broker on any offering in which you are interested.

These generally reveal sufficient information on the security of the debt obligation, the institution's operations and terms ok the offering to enable you to make a decision on the attractiveness of the issue.

Frequently, institutional bonds are available in amounts as small as $500, in coupon form. Registered bonds, in my opinion the more preferrable form, are issued in minimum amounts of $1,000. The current rate of interest on these bonds is only moderately greater than would be available in good quality utility bonds, an alternative you might wish to investigate.

A common form for institutional debt offerings is the serial note maturing sequentially for 10 years. Longer term issues would not be my choice because of the possibility of getting locked in. Some, but certainly not all, of this group are not easy to sell should the need for cash arise.

If the bond is sponsored by one of the larger investment houses which specialize in institutional underwriting they generally maintain a continuous market for their offerings. An "AA" rated serial note of 10-year bond secured by a first mortgage should be relatively risk free.

Q. Can you give me the name and address of the organization for retirees? — J.L.

A. The organization, American Association of the Retired Persons, is located at 1225 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Subscription to two AARP periodicals are included in the $2 annual membership cost.

The association helps the retiree keep abreast of legislation which will directly affect him and offers group rate benefits on insurance, travel and drugs.
